EXTREME ALARM FOR POPE

DRAPERS REJECT DEMANDS

Officials of the Draper Company at Hopedale this afternoon flatly turned down the demands of a committee representing the 1,5000 strikers. In doing so the company declared that it would never recognize the I. W. W. "We consider it un-American," they said.

It was the second time that the Draper Company refused to meet the demands of the strikers. A committeel, headed by Raphael Marino, waited on the officials of the Draper Company in the company's office. When the conference was over the Draper people issued a statement which said in part:

We have no intention of increasing wages nor have we any intention of abolishing the piece system in the Draper shops.

Furthermore, we will have absolutely nothing to do with the I. W. W. because it is not a union and we consider it unAmerican. The I. W. W. has tendencies to destroy the American government.

The conference today followed a pitched battle, in which four men were seriously injured. The battle was between sympathetic striking I. W. W. workers at the Lapworth & Sons' elastic web factory and the police. Two of the wounded were policemen.

The strikers fought with stones and clubs and were met by a squad of twenty-five police hurriedly summoned, under the command of Lieutenant Hawkins of Boston. Clubs were used frequently, and the strikers were finally dispersed.

The trouble originated over the attempt of the mob of 500 to break up a crowd of twenty-five girls who were going from the railroad to the Lapworth plant. Women and girls in the strikers' ranks began the assault on the strike-breakers, who were thrown down, trampled upon and forced to flee for their lives. But four sheriffs were present at the time, and a hurry call was sent for the Metropolitan police.

Upon their arrival the police rushed the crowd with their night sticks, and two of their number were stretched out by stones flung by the mob. A second later two Italians were dropped by the officers' clubs. The four men were rushed to hospital houses and received immediate medical attention.

FIREMEN FIGHT HOUR TO SAVE 1000 CASKS OF LIQUORS

For an hour today firemen battled against flames in the two upper stories of the E. L. Dempsey Liquor Company's six-story building, Merrimac and Lancaster streets, to save a thousand casks of mixed liquors, knowing that if the spirits once got fire there would be no hope of saving the block. The firemen were obliged to throw many casks of liquor into the streets, fearing an explosion. In their battle against the "demon rum" they confined the blaze to the two stories. The loss was $2,500. Six thousand empty bottles were smashed by the heat. The fire started in a pile of straw.

D. A. R. BALLOTS IN TRIPLE FIGHT FOR PRESIDENCY

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Balloting for the presidency-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution began shortly after 10 o'clock today. Approximately 1200 votes will be cast and the first ballot will consume ten or twelve hours. An hour for dinner will also be determined late today. Balloting is by machine and the chapters vote by States alphabetically.

Mrs. John Miller Horton of Buffalo and Mrs. William Cumming Story of New York are hopeful that today's vote will result satisfactorily to themselves and their respective followers.

Mrs. Charles R. Bryan of Memphis and her followers are hopeful that no conclusion will be reached and that a deadlock ensuing, she will be chosen.

There are many candidates for vice-president-general. Although not so important, friends of the candidates early disclosed their interest and indulged in active canvassing.

State delegations meeting during the congress have elected officers as follows: Connecticut, Mrs. John L. Buell, re-elected regent; Mrs. George M. Minor, vice-regent; Rhode Island, Mrs. Chris E. Bowen, regent; Mrs. George J. Arnold, vice-regent.

Norwich Banks Closed By State Bank Commission

NORWICH, Ct., April 16.—Close on the heels of an order of the comptroller of the United States closing the First National Bank of this city, today, the Connecticut Bank Commissioners today closed the Thames Loan and Trust Company, a saving institution on a restraining order issued by Judge Williams of the Superior Court.

The capital of the First National is $300,000 and its surplus and profits $60,000. Total assets and liabilities are $1,272,608. It is stated that the withdrawal of $250,000 deposits from the institution has all been since the dropping of President Jerome from the United States Finishing Company.

Jerome is also president of the Thames Loan and Trust Company, which was ordered closed by the State Bank Commissioners this afternoon. The Thames Loan and Trust Company is capitalized at $100,000 and its surplus and profits are given as $70,000.

GOVERNOR FOSS NAMES JUSTICES

Governor Foss today sent to the council the following nominations:

Joseph A. Sheehan and John G. Brackett of Boston as special justices of the Municipal Court of Boston; Randolph C. Hord of Newburyport for medical examiner of Suffolk County; Francis A. Bickell of Weymouth for commissioner of State aid and pensions; Daniel J. Cavan of Haverhill for special justice of the District Court of Northern Essex, vice John J. Winn, promoted.

"Tech" Man First Wireless Amateur to Be Prosecuted

The first amateur wireless telegrapher in New England to be prosecuted for interfering with the big naval and commercial stations, under the new federal wireless regulation, is L. P. Hill, a young Technology student, who has a small station at his home, No. 75 Monmouth street, Brookline.

United States Radio Inspector Henry C. Gawler of the New England district today placed his case before United States District Attorney French.

Mr. Gawler has received many complaints concerning amateur operators who have been tampering, with messages in the air and he said today that he proposes to make an example of Hill, whom he caught at work.

Just what steps are to be taken will be determined by the federal District Attorney.

CARDINALS WARNED OF CRISIS

BULLETIN.

ROME, April 16.—An extremely alarming night for Pope Puis X. was forecast at the Vatican this evening. Dr. Marchiafava spent some time in consultation with Dr. Amici and arranged to be ready on a moment's call to visit the sick room. The curia cardinals were officially notified of the gravity of the situation.

ROME, April 16.—The report that a fresh crisis was rapidly approaching in the condition of Pope Pius X. this afternoon prepared Rome for the gravest news from the Vatican.

Dr. Andrea Amici, hastily summoned from lunch, found Pope Pius suffering from highly increased fever. The Pope's condition is regarded as very critical.

Cardinals Merry del Val and Bressan, receiving German pilgrims in behalf of the Pontiff, found it impossible to conceal their depression.

FAMOUS LAWYER CALLED TO VATICAN.

Signor Patriarca, the lawyer who represents the Holy See, was summoned to the Vatican at 11:35 this morning. The same lawyer drew up the last testament of Pope Leo XIII., and the inference was that he has been asked to do the same for Pope Pius X.

Count Pecci, a nephew of the late Pope Leo XIII., and former commander of the Palatine Guards, visited the Vatican at noon. He was told that the Pope had been moved near the window when informed that officers in the aviation corps and King Victor thought of sending a dirigible balloon over the Vatican. The Pope expressed a wish to see the airship if it should make the flight.

Speaks Farewells.

The Pope, convinced despite his cheerful optimism that his ultimate dissolution from his present ailment is inevitable, this afternoon insisted on taking leave of all his personal attendants, most of whom served him when, as archbishop, patriarch and later cardinal, he lived in Venice, and whom he brought to the Vatican when he was elevated to the pontificate.

Realizing that his end could not be far off, the papal physicians consented, but limited the number of servants to be admitted, singly, to the sick chamber and the length of each visit.

Solemnly, cooks, grooms, gardeners and other attaches of the Vatican entered the Pope's room, falling on their knees at the foot of his bed.

The Pope spoke to all of them in the soft Venetian tongue, first thinking them for their long service and then giving them the apostolic blessing. Every servitor cried as if his heart would break, and before the audience had gone far, the Holy Father was crying, too.

Pontiff Embraces Brother.

Angelo Sarto, the Pope's brother, who is postmaster of a little town in the department of Venice, visited the sickroom today, having arrived in Rome last night. Importance was attached to the coming of this brother, for it had been reported that he would not be summoned unless the Pontiff reached a stage bordering on extremis.

The greeting between the Pope and his aged brother was highly affecting and a complete reconciliation of their long estrangement was brought about. Angelo, who is an old man, kissed his brother on both cheeks while he begged forgiveness and benediction.

Despite his weakness the Pope raised both of his arms and affectionately placed them around his brother's neck.

"I have ever loved you, Angelo," murmured the Pontiff. "I have never borne ill will."

FEAR POPE WILL NOT LIVE THROUGH NIGHT.

ROME, April 16, 7 p. m.—Dr. Marchiafava and Dr. Amici have frankly expressed the fear that the Pope will not live through the night. At this hour indications from the sick room are that His Holiness is sinking rapidly.

WHITE HOUSE TAKES UP JAP PROTEST.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The Japanese protest against the passage of the California Alien land law delivered to President Wilson by Ambassador Chinda yesterday was discussed at the White House today.

16 OVERCOME IN COAL MINE FIRE.

BERLIN, April 16.—Sixteen miners were overcome by gas from a coal mine fire at Hamborn, Rhenish Prussia, but were taken out safely. Several of them are in a precarious condition.

OVERRIDE "FREE TUNNEL TOLL" VETO BY FOSS

"Governor Foss was influenced to veto the East Boston Tunnel toll bill by a politician close to the Elevated" was the charge made by Representative Benjamin F. Sullivan, while talking in favor of the measure before the House today. Following Mr. Sullivan's speech the lower branch of the Legislature overrode Governor Foss's veto by a vote of 105 to 16.

Representatives Giblin and Brophy assisted Representative Sullivan in leading the fight to override the veto.

The bill makes possible the abolition of the penny tolls collected in the East Boston Tunnel.

MRS. WIDENER GETS NEWPORT ESTATE

NEWPORT, April 16.—Mrs. George D. Widener of Philadelphia, who is to build a large residence on land formerly owned by the late Dr. Christopher M. Bell and J. V. Greene, on Bellevue avenue and the cliffs, has rented for the season the estate owned by Mr. and Mrs. John R. Drexel on Ochre Point, adjoining the estate of Mrs. Vanderbilt and the Summer home of Mr. and Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer. Mr. Widener was lost on board the Titanic with his son.

Mrs. Joshua Crane Dies from Injuries in Motor Accident

Mrs. Joshua Crane, wife of the former champion racquet player, sportsman and Harvard football coach, died at her home in Westwood early today.

Mrs. Crane was seriously injured March 29 in an automobile accident on the Boston and Cape Cod turnpike, near Middleboro. With her in the car were Mr. Crane and his little son and daughter.

The accident was due to Mrs. Crane fainting while driving the car. Her husband, who was on the front seat, beside her, tried with one hand to stop the car, while with the other he endeavored to save Mrs. Crane from falling.

WOMAN IN GAS PERIL.

Adeline M. Tuttle, ninety, is on the dangerous list at the City Hospital. She was found in her room, No. 70 Chandler street, unconscious, with the gas turned on, but not lighted.

RANDALL FOR PRISONS PLACE OF PETTIGROVE

Frank L. Randall of St. Cloud, Minnesota, was today nominated for chairman of the prison commission by Governor Foss. If accepted by the Governor's Council, Randall will take the place of Frederick G. Pettigrove, the present incumbent.

Randall is now head of the State reformatory at St. Cloud. He resigned and is holding office pending taking over the office by his successor. His record at St. Cloud attracted the attention of Governor Foss, who has long desired to appoint a successor to Pettigrove to reform the prison conditions of the State. Randall came to Boston and met the Governor and the council and it is believed that he will be confirmed.

STARTS TODAY ON BALLOON SEA TRIP

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, April 16. Captain Joseph Brucker, formerly of Milwaukee, whose dirigible balloon is being inflated for a trip across the Atlantic, announced that he will start today if the present favorable wind holds.

S. A. Collieson, Leather Dealer, Leaps to Death

Two hours after he had planned with his physician a trip for his health, Samuel A. Collieson, a Boston leather merchant, plunged head foremost today from his bedroom window on the second floor of his home at No. 46 Wallace street, West Somerville. When Collieson struck the sidewalk his skull is fractured. He was dead when Dr. H. P. MacKechnie arrived.

Collieson had been in ill health for several months. He told Dr. MacKechnie when the latter visited him today that he was going to Bermuda to see if the change would not do him good. Soon after the doctor left the house Collieson had an attack of melancholia and leaped from the window.

Collieson leaves a wife and son, Arthur S. Collieson. He had long been in business in Boston at No. 24 Union street.

'DANGEROUS,' SAYS FOSS IN LIGHT VETO

Governor Foss this afternoon sent to the Senate his veto of the bill to extend the powers of the Cambridge Electric Light Company, on the ground that "legislation of this sort is objectionable and dangerous." The Governor says:

This measure would give to the Cambridge Electric Light Company an extension of corporate rights, powers and privileges of a far-reaching character. It authorizes the corporation to construct conduits or other means of transmission as may be necessary through the public streets, and wherever required, but it proposes no sort of regulation over these new classes of service other than the existing laws relative to electric light companies within their customary field of service.

This measure furnishes an illustration of the present tendency to confer extremely valuable additional rights upon existing companies and thus in effect to reconstruct them under a far more valuable franchise than they originally held, but without any equivalent return to the public. Legislation of this sort is objectionable and dangerous.

This bill also shows the great importance of providing immediately, without equivocation, for the more effective public regulation of our public service corporations before bestowing additional legislative benefits upon any such existing corporations.

Back Bay Must Chase Its Own Cats; Police 'On Strike'

The Back Bay police have gone out in their secret "public servant" strike. No longer will the policemen of the Back Bay be forced to do these things at the telephone request of nervous apartment-house dwellers:

Shoo away sleep-killing cats.

Grease squeaking window blinds which disturb somebody's rest.

Tell the family upstairs that they must quit their joy party and let the rest of the house sleep.

Keep the music students from practicing all night long.

Make the squalling babies behave in the night.

Bring up the milk bottle from the front stoop.

Order the milkman to stop whistling up and down stairs.

The police say that Back Bay residents would call up the station at all hours and ask that policemen be sent out on all sorts of wild errands. Then the policemen went on a secret "strike."

Just as secretly they sent word from headquarters that their business is to "protect" and not to do foolish or personal errands for anybody.

TECH SUICIDE LETTERS ADD TO MYSTERY

Letters left by Thomas Senior, the fourth-year student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which were revealed today, deepen the mystery surrounding his suicide in his room, No. 3 Spruce street.

The letter written to his father, and which has been turned over to relatives, read as follows:

Dearest Father: What I am about to do is most selfish on my part, but it is for the best. I have failed to live up to my ideals and the future does not appear to hold anything for me. So I must say goodbye.

This letter, like the one to his roommate, J. B. Aub, a Harvard medical student, was signed most affectionately. And the other letters show sorrow for the contemplated act, but, at the same time, declared it was the only course left.

Deny Love Affair.

Accompanied by relatives, Senior's body was started for Cincinnati this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Funeral services will be held there Saturday.

The fear that it was a love affair that prompted Senior to end his life is emphatically denied by all who knew him. Lee M. Friedman, an attorney, stated that Medical Examiner George H. Magrath found Senior was suffering from mental depression.

"This condition," Mr. Friedman stated, "was due to his poor physical condition, weight, and was in an almost exhausted physical condition. Hence, in a despondent moment, he ended his life. I'd like to state there was no love affair. He liked the social side of life, but there was no girl in the case."

Senior stood high at Technology. He would have been graduated at the end of the present school year in chemical engineering. He belonged to no fraternities. His sole work outside of his class duties was as faculty editor of Technique, a school publication.

Was Sure of Diploma.

Walter Humphreys, registrar at Technology, stated today that Senior was above the average in his studies. He was sure of getting his degree, according to Mr. Humphreys, and was a student who did not have to work himself.

Friends at Smith College, when they heard of Senior's death, were shocked. A number of the students at the Northampton institution are from Cincinnati. They were visited on Thursday by Senior when he accompanied the Tech rowing team to Northampton. With none of the girls from Cincinnati was he on closer terms than friendship.

ELEVATED GRANTS ADDITIONAL FREE CHECK PRIVILEGES

In compliance with a request from the Roxbury Citizens' Association, the Elevated established additional free transfer privileges today, at Washington and Northampton streets, to Southampton street cars for South Boston and vice versa. New transfer privileges were also established at Hyde Square, Jamaica Plain, and conductors will issue to passengers upon request, checks good for transfer at that point from any inbound cars to any inbound cars of another line, or from any outbound car to outbound cars of any other line. The company in compliance with a request from the Hillside Men's Club of Medford Hillside will extend tomorrow the free transfer privileges upon Medford Hillside cars and Cambridge cars so that passengers entering the Cambridge subway at Central Square or Kendall Square stations, outward bound, and paying cash fare may receive from the collector upon request, a check for transfer at Arlington Centre to an inward bound Medford Hillside car.

MAY APPOINT RECESS BOARDS ON FOOD LAWS

The Public Health Committee of the Legislature in executive session today appointed a commission to confer with the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House on the advisability of having a recess commission to investigate the State Board of Health and the necessary codification of food laws.

There are three bills before the committee proposing three different recess commissions. It is now proposed to unite these three recess commissions into one.

The bill to revise and codify food laws was presented by Harry P. Cassidy, and the committee consists of Senators Ezra W. Clark and F. J. McCarthy and Representatives Frank Mulvaney, Enos H. Bigelow and Henry J. Mahoney.

BLIND DETECTIVE WITH RED PEPPER

While on duty protecting garment strike breakers in the South End, it is said, Edward Murray, thirty-three, a 'private' detective for the Burns agency, was temporarily blinded and suffered intense pain, when a package of red pepper was thrown in his face as he was standing on Washington street, near the corner of Lovering place, South End.

MEASLES SPREAD TO HARVARD MEN

A few isolated cases of measles in Cambridge were believed today to be responsible for the outburst of about twenty cases of measles among students resulting at Harvard during the recess. Dr. Marshall A. Bailey, college physician, has sent a number of the patients to the Stillman infirmary.

REMOVE CARGO OF BURNING VESSEL

Scores of men are today transferring the cargo from hold No. 2 of the British steamship Karema of the Bucknall line, which arrived from Calcutta and Colombo with a fire that has smouldered in hold No. 1 for several days. Steam is still being shot into the hold.

EMMA WULFF, Wakefield schoolgirl, whose suit for $5,000 damages because she was expelled from the Wakefield High School has gone to the Supreme Court, which will set a precedent.

The suit of Miss Emma Wulff, an eighteen-year-old Wakefield school girl, for $5,000 against the town for having expelled her from the Wakefield High School, was today sent to the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, by Judge Dana in the court at East Cambridge.

In order to place the unique case before the highest tribunal in the State, Judge Dana dismissed the jury which had been hearing the evidence. Then he ordered a verdict in favor of the town so that a final ruling can be made by the Supreme Bench. In sending the case to the highest court Judge Dana set a precedent.

The suit, brought by the Wakefield girl, was the first of its kind ever to come before the courts of the Commonwealth. It was the first instance where the teacher as final arbiter of school administration has been questioned.

After the jury was chosen today Miss Wulff took the stand. She testified that when she attended the high school she stood second in the bookkeeping class, and that Helen North, who stood first was designated by the teacher to correct work done by the other pupils.

One problem which she turned in, asserted Miss Wulff, was marked wrong by Miss North, and after the plaintiff had worked on the problem for the greater part of a week, she took it to the teacher and the latter said she had it right in the first place.

Miss Wulff requested that the teacher mark the papers, and then her stepfather requested the school committee to have some other person than Miss North, or any pupil of the school, correct the papers. This was refused, it is alleged, and then, according to the witness, because she dropped the subject of bookkeeping from her studies, she was suspended from the school.

At this point Judge Dana ordered the jury to retire.

FIFTH ARREST IN ROTTEN EGG CASE EXPECTED

The fifth man indicted by the Grand Jury on a charge of selling rotten eggs for food purposes is expected to be arrested today.

Four indictments were returned by the Gand Jury, following District Attorney Pelletier's investigation. One indictment was jointly against two men.

Those who were arrested yesterday were Morris Brown, Max Schwerer, Joseph Eisenberg, and the Standard Egg Company. William I. Schell appeared for the Standard Egg Company and pleaded "Not Guilty." The other three defendants entered similar pleas. Attorney John P. Feeney reserved the right to change his plea at the end of a week if it seemed advisable.

Bail was fixed at $500 for each defendant and was furnished immediately after the arraignments before Judge Brown in the Suffolk Superior Court.

After the fifth defendant has been arrested and has entered his plea, the cases will be assigned for trial.

Brown, Schwerer, Eisenberg and Attorney Schell appeared in Pemberton square at 2 o'clock. They went from the police headquarters, but were told that Inspector Waite was not there, and went to the District Attorney's office hunting the Inspector. They failed to find him there, and returned to headquarters, where Inspector Waite found them. After the warrants had been served, and the defendants had been booked, they were taken before Judge Brown, in custody of Inspector Waite, and were arraigned.

The investigation by District Attorney Pelletier and the Grand Jury followed charges made by Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S food expert. Evidence collected by Mr. Cassidy and reporters for the AMERICAN was presented to Mr. Pelletier. He made an investigation on his own account before presenting the case to the Grand Jury.

SEEKS IN VAIN FOR DAUGHTER LOST 4 DAYS

A heartbroken mother is trudging the streets of Cambridge and Boston seeking her missing daughter. The girl, her only child, is pretty Mary Sargent, who worked up to last Saturday as a candy girl in a Cambridge factory. The mother is Mrs. Robert Rogers of No. 40 Howard street, Cambridgeport. Mary is her child by a former marriage.

On the appeal of the mother every patrolman and every police inspector in Cambridge has been asked to look for her. Descriptions of the girl have been sent to the police of Boston and of Greater Boston cities and towns.

The mother is frantic with grief and refuses to rest a minute from her search. She fears the girl has been kidnaped. Mary, who will be fifteen years old tomorrow, disappeared last Saturday afternoon. Since that time neither the mother nor the police have found the slightest clew to where or why or how she went away.

Wanted to Marry Mary.

Mrs. Rogers, just before she left her house to resume her hunt for Mary today, told an AMERICAN reporter of how she had located an Italian laborer named "Jimmy," who once asked to be allowed to marry her daughter. Mrs. Rogers talked with "Jimmy"—she has never learned his last name—and later had Cambridge police inspectors interview the youth at the place where he is working in Watertown. "Jimmy," who is supposed to have saved up quite a sum of money, denied all knowledge of the girl's whereabouts, so that her disappearance was today a deeper mystery than ever.

Came Home With Ring.

The mother and the police searched the Italian's lodging house but without success. Today Inspector Michael Nellon searched the Italian colonies in Allston and Brighton, while other inspectors searched t he Italian colonies in East Cambridge and Somerville in the belief that the girl might be traced.

Neither the mother nor the police were inclined to believe the girl had eloped. The mother said she feared harm had come to her child. She told, however, of a gold ring set with four emeralds which her daughter had brought home last Friday afternoon.

"Look, mamma, at what I found on the street," the girl said to her mother.

"I didn't like the looks of the ring so I took it away from Mary," said Mrs. Rogers today. "But after all this may not have had any connection with Mary's disappearance.

"It seems to me that I have walked through every street in Cambridge. I have been to every police station. I have been to all my neighbors and have talked with every girl in the factory where Mary worked. But none of them knew anything about her.

Had Little Money With Her.

"Mary's aunt gave her a half dollar to buy some coal. The dealer brought the coal and it cost forty-eight cents. That means that Mary had only two cents with her. I think she must have been kidnaped."

The missing girl is well developed for her age, is five feet in height, of dark complexion, with blue eyes and weighs about 100 pounds. When last seen she wore a green hat, light blue sash dress, a middy blouse, black button shoes and stockings. She made $5 a week as a candy girl, but had not collected her wages for last week.

"Jimmy," the Italian youth, told the police he had not seen her since October. Then it is said he was told not to visit the Rogers home any more. He said he loved the girl then and wanted to marry her "because they marry young in Italy."

LONDON PRESS PRAISES HEARST TARIFF VIEWS

LONDON, April 16.—Commenting editorially on the statement by William Randolph Hearst, published in the Washington Post and other American newspapers, the Evening Pall Mall Gazette, a staunch Conservative paper, says:

America's conversion to free trade has met an unfortunate check through the fact that Mr. Hearst, who supported President Wilson for election, has already "bolted" from the new tariff proposals.

The particular significance of his attitude lies in the adoption of such a line of criticism by one who is recognized as professional judge of popular feeling in such matters. Mr. Hearst is evidently convinced that nothing will more certainly cause a reversion of feeling on the part of the American people than to spread the alarm that free trade is at their gates. We have little doubt that in taking this view he is entirely right.

In its editorial regarding Mr. Hearst's tariff statement, the Evening Star says:

Although Mr. Hearst supported Dr. Wilson in the presidential campaign, he is now attacking him in his newspapers. Mr. Hearst says that most of the advanced and intelligent thought of England today is in favor of a policy of protection, but he does not explain that the British people as a whole have defeated the protectionists at three successive elections.

Inasmuch as the average ad valorem rates proposed in the Underwood bill would work out about 25 per cent. reduction in tariff as compared with present rates, its is fair to say that President Wilson is at least 25 per cent. of a free trader.

SALVATIONISTS TO CONVENE TONIGHT

Lewis Loses Two Days as Senator By "Prinking-Up"

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Fifteen minutes spent in grooming himself before making an appearance in the Senate Chamber will cost Senator-elect James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois two days of his term as Senator.

Instead of leaving his hotel for the Capitol promptly after arrival, Colonel Lewis took time to change his linen and reached the Capitol to be sworn in only to find the Senate had adjourned till Thursday.

The new Senator does not intend to remain in the aristocratic hotel where he is now stopping.

"I cannot afford it," he said. "I have no desire to emulate the feats or the rich. I shall get a modest apartment."

CAPITAL PHONE GIRLS TO ORGANIZE

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The Central Labor Union of this city will begin at once to organize the telephone operators of Washington and vicinity as a result of the feeling caused by the sending of local operators to Boston to act as strike-breakers during the trouble there recently.

WOMEN FIGHT $25,000 FIRE IN MILL PLANT

A bucket brigade of thirty men, assisted by many women and children, saved the village of Baltimore, between the towns of Medway and Norfolk, from fire early today when the plant of the Baltimore Paper Company was destroyed with a loss of $25,000.

The fire was raging fiercely in the paper mill when discovered. The dozen houses in the village were directly in the path of the flames. Forming a line from the banks of the Charles River to the houses the men passed along buckets after bucket of water. They managed to keep the roofs and sides of their village homes covered with water, thus preventing a new fire when sparks from the burning mill landed on their houses.

The women and children, meanwhile, were busily at work in the glare of the early morning mill fire, moving all their household belongings from the houses to the nearby fields. A heavy downpour of rain also aided the fire fighters.

MAYOR URGES QUICK AID FOR MAINE FUND

Mayor's Office,
City Hall,
BOSTON, April 15, 1913.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Enclosed please find check twenty-five dollars ($25), my contribution to making up the balance of the Maine Monument Fund.

At the time when the whole country was shocked by the destruction of our great battleship in Havana harbor, Mr. Hearst earned the approbation of all patriotic Americans by so promptly taking steps to rear a monument in the Empire City to preserve for all time the story of the brave sailors who lost their lives on that memorable and tragic evening.

Changes in the original design make necessary the raising of $40,000. Of this sum Mr. Hearst offers to contribute half out of his private purse. His efforts should be warmly seconded by the American people. Sincerely yours,

JOHN F. FITZGERALD,
Mayor.

Members of Trentini's "Firefly" company at the Shubert and of the Aborn Grand Opera company at the Tremont will attend the local opening of the National League season tomorrow.

They have volunteered to assist in completing the great memorial in New York to the martyrs of the battleship Maine by collecting funds for the $40,000 needed, and the baseball fans are going to be given the opportunity to show their patriotism.

The girls will occupy reserved seats in the grandstand, but they intend to circle the field between the innings, and are confident they will secure a large sum from the generous Boston fans.

Emma Trentini has volunteered to accompany her girls to the game. She has never seen a baseball game.

That Massachusetts is always quick to respond to a patriotic appeal is shown by the following letter. Miss Ryan, the writer, suggests that any money left over might go to the live soldiers, who were very brave, too.

She is quite right, and if there should be a surplus it could not be better devoted. Just now there is anything but a surplus, which is why the appeal is being made.

Editor AMERICAN:

Please find inclosed one dollar towards the great memorial to the battleship Maine.

It's exceedingly brave and kind of William Randolph Hearst to contribute dollar for dollar given by the public.

If you should have any money left over, could it not go to the live soldiers in "the soldiers' homes," who were very brave, too.

MISS KATHERINE RYAN,
No. 38 Malvern road, Worcester.

Why It Costs $40,000 More for Maine Monument

THESE photographs show at a glance the wonderful improvement that was made in the Maine Monument after it was originally designed. The original plan on which the contract was based for the construction of the monument was decidedly smaller in general scope than the final plans called for.

The upper picture, showing merely the pylon with the marble and bronze groups, is the monument as it was at first planned to build it with the funds in hands.

As the details were from time to time taken up with the city authorities, and various locations were decided upon, the Municipal Art Commission made various suggestions for the betterment of the monument.

As soon as the magnificent Central Park location was taken up the Art Commission suggested that, to give the monument the dignified surroundings that its historic associations called for, something would have to be done to adjust existing conditions in the neighborhood. After grave consideration the commission decided that an entirely new entrance to Central Park would have to be made.

The original fund, which was raised through the Hearst newspapers, with interest to date, would have been sufficient to complete the monument as originally planned and contracted for. But by direction of the commission the gates were added. These gates (costing almost $30,000) and other costs and changes in the monument proper, brought about by the commission, will bring the total of the monument and dedication $40,000 above the fund and its interest.

Park Commissioner Stover will plant trees to commemorate the American ships in the Spanish-American war, and the battleships in the U. S. navy to-day. He will, with shrubs and plants, make this the beauty spot of the park.

TELL RAILROAD BOARD OF CAR SERVICE BY 'L'

Representatives Edward Emmett McGrath of Ward 18 headed a delegation of business men of the Roxbury Crossing section, which today called on the Railroad Commissioners to see what could be done in getting the Boston Elevated to run more cars on Tremont street and Columbus and Shawmut avenues.

Recently the Roxbury Crossing Board of Trade held mass meetings and adopted a set of resolutions, one of which was sent to the Elevated officials and the other to the Railroad Commissioners, protesting against inadequate car service.

The Railroad Commissioners were today handed this resolution:

Resolved: That we want the Brookline cars to run from Cypress street by way of Brookline Village, Roxbury Crossing, subway to North Station, and not from Calumet square.

Resolved: That we want the belt line cars put back on the old route, and that the North Cambridge cars be restored on regular time.

Resolved: That we want through service from the subway to Roxbury Crossing, and that the Spring Hill car Winding up Dudley street to Roxbury Crossing be restored.

A petition bearing the names of hundreds of business men of Brookline Village and vicinity was also given to the Railroad Commissioners.

WHITNEY SIFTS WAREHAM MAN'S SUDDEN DEATH

District Attorney A. F. Barker of Brockton is in Wareham today, investigating the case of Ozy Craig, twenty-five, a street car conductor, who died within an hour after a doctor had administered some unknown remedy through the nose.

Who this doctor is, what was the character of the remedy used, or who the person is said to have been with Craig while the physician attended him, the authorities will not reveal.

District Attorney Barker was notified of Craig's death by Medical Examiner C. E. Morse after an autopsy. Dr. Morse has sent parts of the body to Professor Whitney, the poison expert of Harvard, for analysis and is now awaiting Professor Whitney's report.

AINSWORTH IS FOUND; STATE MAY CALL HIM

D. Henry Ainsworth, the first husband of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, will be one of the most important witnesses for the government in her trial for murdering her husband, Admiral Eaton.

"We can put our hands on Ainsworth the minute we want him," said Officer John Scott of the State police today. "I will not state whether we will bring him here or not."

The officials of the State are making little effort to conceal their satisfaction at having located Ainsworth.

District Attorney Barker considered the matter of so great importance that he held a conference with the State officers over the telephone lasting half an hour.

James Thom, the aged Hingham nurseryman and admirer of June Keyes, who left home mysteriously a week ago, has been located in New York State.

"I am ready to come back when wanted," is the message he sent to the police.

That Ainsworth may be in the far West was indicated by a chance remark of his oldest daughter, Mrs. June Ainsworth Keyes, who told a neighbor that he was with her grandfather. The latter is believed to be in New Mexico.

The discovery of Ainsworth by the authorities is thought to furnish a partial explanation for the re-opening of the inquest into the admiral's death that is expected will come very soon. What he can testify to is a matter that the authorities have not disclosed.

Berlin Rumor Says Nancy Leishman Is Wedded to Duke

BERLIN, April 16.—The same tinge of mystery that pervaded this announced betrothal last month of Miss Nancy Leishman, daughter of United States Ambassador Leishman, to the Duke of Croy, was prevalent again in connection with a rumor that the couple are married.

On March 26 it was reported that the marriage ceremony would be performed on April 11. On that day the duke was twenty-four years old and came into possession of the family estate in Westphalia. He now has a large fortune in his own right and is at the head of the house of Croy.

But the Leishman family, while denying that the wedding had already taken place, refused to say whether it had been set for April 17 or was postponed from that day.

TARIFF BILL WILL PASS, SAYS UNDERWOOD

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—Following a conference with President Wilson at the White House early today, Representative Underwood, majority leader of the House, declared he sees no obstacle in the way of the passage of the tariff bill introduced ten days ago.

"It appears to me there is nothing in sight for the bill but clear sailing from this time on," said the Alabama Representative. "Today I went over a few minor provisions of the bill with President Wilson and we are in perfect accord concerning even the last of the schedules. I have canvassed the House and I don't think that any widespread opposition will occur, certainly not enough to endanger the passage of the bill."

Representative Underwood was greatly pleased at the democratic victory in the Massachusetts Congressional election.

Kidney Remedy That Acts Like Magic

I have been a terrible sufferer for a number of years with kidney and liver trouble, also nervous prostration and health generally poor, constitution entirely run down until life became a burden. I tried physicians and every available remedy but found no relief. Was induced to give Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root a trial, which acted like magic, and am happy to say that I believe I am entirely cured and now as good a man as ever.

I believe it my duty to make this public statement, that I may help others who may be suffering from the same trouble. Swamp-Root is, without question, the greatest remedy in the world. Anyone in doubt of this statement or the authenticity can address me as below.

The Three Taxes On Tea

First:—Threepence per pound imposed by Great Britain upon her American Colonies, resulting in the historical "Boston Tea Party" Dec. 16, 1773.

Second:—10c per pound imposed by the United States Government for Spanish War Revenue. Repealed Jan. 1, 1903.

Third:—6c to 8c imposed by Tea Packers who sell their tea in canisters, tin cans, etc., with expensive labels. Is it the beauty of the package rather than the quality of the tea upon which these packers depend for their sales? Isn't this method as clearly "Taxation Without Representation" as the first tax referred to above?

As Tea Merchants we protest against this extravagant method of merchandizing tea in which your money buys part tea and part expensive package.

Our Golden Dome Teas will be delivered to your grocer at frequent intervals in original chests as they are received from the Orient, and weighed fresh to your order. Every ounce Quality, with no expensive package.

Danish Count to Try to Bring Scott Back to Life Again

BRIDGEPORT, April 16.—"Convinced that the body of Captain Scott, the English explorer, whose life was lost a year ago returning from the South Pole, sits there frozen in a perfectly healthy condition, I am confident that I can reach him and restore him to life.

"The expedition will leave San Francisco in August for New Zealand, and from there we will start for the place where Captain Scott's body was left by his comrades."

This was the startling announcement made today by Count August de Castelbaje Seymore, a Danish nobleman. Men of prominence in the financial life of New York are interested in the undertaking and Count Seymore is in Bridgeport for a few days attending to some of the details.

With the recently invented Eisenberger respirator, the pulmotor and other scientific appliances, Count Seymore believes he will be able to resuscitate Captain Scott, despite his condition of a year's standing.

PAST FIFTY? YOU NEED "CASCARETS"

What glasses are to weak eyes, Cascarets are to weak bowels —Try a 10-Cent box.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So all old people need Cascarets. One night as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics.

Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

EXPERT OPENS BANK INQUIRY AT PROVIDENCE

PROVIDENCE, April 16.—John W. Schofield, the most expert bank examiner in the employ of the Treasury Department, is expected here today to examine the books of the wrecked Atlantic National Bank, under orders of Comptroller of the Currency Murray.

Mr. Schofield has been ordered to make a thorough examination not only of the present condition of the bank but of its condition last December, when, after an examination, Bank Examiner Joseph Balch reported the bank was in good shape.

Comptroller Murray is puzzled to account for the present condition of affairs. He received a lengthy telegram today from Examiner Balch reporting that the bank had been greatly overloaded with poor paper.

Mr. Murray sent Schofield with express instructions to find out and report to him why the Atlantic National had to close its doors with liabilities of nearly three million dollars if the bank's capital was unimpaired when Mr. Balch made his last report in December.

He fears the real condition of affairs was overlooked at that time. It was learned today that Examiner Balch and the deposed president of the bank, Edward F. Metcalf, were intimate friends. Mr. Balch was formerly president of the Board of Aldermen and is a well known politician.

Directors Worth Millions.

Comptroller Murray cannot account for the action of the directors in allowing the bank to be closed when the confidential report on file in his office showed the directors were worth more than a million dollars.

It is understood, however, that the directors, learning that the capital stock had been wiped out, thought it advisable to refuse deposits as local banks would have refused assistance.

Examiner Balch has reported to Mr. Murray that so far there is no evidence of criminality in the records of the bank's business. He is making a thorough investigation today to determine whether or not the bank is solvent.

SAVE A COUPON, GET WONDERFUL SET OF BOOKS

Think of it—a five-volume set of modern reference books for one coupon and $1.98! It doesn't seem possible; but the AMERICAN has placed the largest book order ever given to a publisher, and will give its readers the benefit by distributing these sets on the popular coupon plan next Friday and Saturday.

This wonderful set of books is called Everybody's Cyclopedia. Its pages are filled with ready reference information suitable for all purposes. In science and art, biography, and all other encyclopedic subjects it is complete. Its chronological history begins with the first records known to man and is brought down through the ages to the important events of this year.

It is illustrated as is no similar work, with full page and double page color plates and monotone which cost thousands of dollars to prepare; and instructive text illustrations abound throughout the five volumes. Briefly, it is the latest, greatest and best modern reference work extant, and is to be compared only to the highest priced encyclopedias which sell on the installment plan at from $50 to $100 a set. All this useful information in these large and handsomely volumes is set forth in readable form in Everybody's Cyclopedia.

Read the display announcement printed elsewhere in this issue. Look for the coupon and clip it without delay. Only one coupon is required. Many thousands of dictionaries were distributed to readers of the Boston AMERICAN a year ago, and here is even a greater bargain, as the regular selling price of Everybody's Cyclopedia is $12.

Mail orders will be filled as explained in the coupon. Cut out the coupon today and present it either next Friday or Saturday at any of the branch offices of the AMERICAN named on the coupon.

MISS GRADY TO TELL OF SAVINGS LIFE INSURANCE

Savings bank life insurance as an evangelical factor in every-day life will be discussed by Miss Alice H. Grady at the Men's Club meeting in the Clarendon Street Baptist Church tonight. Miss Grady declared today:

"There is a wonderful inspirational value in a savings bank account. Under certain circumstances, and with some men, I find that a savings bank develops character fully as rapidly as the Sunday school. That's why I accepted the invitation to speak tonight. We need the evangelical influence of the savings bank fully as much as that of the Sunday school, if we wish to streamline the purpose of the church in any given community."

MRS. WALLACE BACON, BROOKLINE WOMAN, SUES FOR DIVORCE

Charging her husband with abusive conduct, Mrs. Jessie W. Bacon of No. 32 Webster street, Brookline, has filed a divorce libel in the Superior Court at Dedham, against Wallace I. Bacon, whom she married at Albany on December 27, 1909.

The libel also alleges that he failed to provide for her, and had habits of intoxication.

She asks divorce and alimony and that he pay for her support during the court proceedings.

Walter I. Bacon is an engineer with an office at No. 184 Summer street. Following their marriage the couple went to live at No. 20 Tarleton road, Newton Centre. Last Fall they moved to Brookline.

Two weeks ago the couple separated and Mrs. Bacon went to live at a Back Bay hotel.

The $10.00 saved on the purchase price of this set would pay for The Daily American three years.

GREATLY REDUCED ILLUSTRATION OF THE $12 SET

Just think of it—5 big volumes at one-sixth their selling price.

Friday, April 18th, and Saturday, April 19th, are the days of this sale. Bring to the American main or branch offices one coupon, printed on another page of this paper, and you will be entitled to take one of these 5-volume sets for $1.98. Our order for these books was large, but they will go fast.

The illustration of these books at left is much reduced in size. The sets are 4 times as large as shown—big, full octavo size, handsomely bound in English cloth. There are thousands of pages—hundreds of text illustrations, full and double page monotone and colored plates — besides numerous colored charts found in no other reference books.

OUR GUARANTEE

We positively guarantee to refund the amount paid by any reader who finds after receiving Everybody's Cyclopedia, that it is not entirely satisfactory and as represented.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

Remember the Days of Sale, Friday, Apr. 18, & Saturday, Apr. 19

CLIP THE COUPON. We expect a big rush on the days of this sale, Friday and Saturday of this week. Be among the first to secure one of these sets. We placed the largest order ever given a publisher, but are unable to say how long they will last if the demand is as great as we have reason to think it will be.

These sets are not to be had at bookstores, nor are they advertised in the magazines. They can only be acquired in this city through the Boston AMERICAN at its branches mentioned in the Cyclopedia Coupon on another page.

Millions of dollars are being spent in advertising the larger cyclopedias, with ten volumes and upwards—they are more cumbersome and less accessible, and not nearly so valuable to the layman.

MAIL ORDERS

The sets are too bulky to be sent by mail, but out-of-town readers can have them for the $1.98, the set to be sent by express, shipping charges to be paid by the receiver. Out-of-town readers need not wait until the days of distribution, but send orders any day of the week and shipments will be made promptly on the distribution days.

This wonderful set of reference books, printed to sell at $2.40 PER VOLUME, $12 per set, can be had on Friday and Saturday at LESS than 40c per volume, which is but a few cents more than the cost of a high grade magazine in paper covers.

EVERYBODY'S CYCLOPEDIA is a complete resume of everything pertaining to science, the arts, biography, history and statistics on all subjects of human interest. It covers more than 35,000 subjects—as many as are found in sets selling at fifty times the AMERICAN'S price.

A few of the many topics in the appendix are Electoral Votes, Legal Holidays, World's Wealth, Libraries, Foreign Coin Values, Armies and Navies and numerous other topics.

More than 500 subjects are treated in the colored pages—the best artists being employed.

SMUGGLING JURY IS TAKEN ON TOUR OF BOSTON PIERS

The Federal Grand Jury investigating the big smuggling frauds in Boston was taken on a tour of the harbor in the rain this afternoon to visit the various piers and the quarantine station. The jury made the trip in the revenue cutter Wilmington, with Surveyor of the Port Graves and Assistant United States District Attorney Shea. The Cunard docks at East Boston were inspected.

The jury heard only one witness at the federal building today. This was a Boston tailor, Chief Wilkie, who has been directing the investigation, left for Washington today.

LODGE ROUSED BY MITCHELL'S BIG VICTORY

Needless to say, I am greatly pleased at my election. Both Mr. White and Mr. Cutting fought a splendid and clean campaign, and I have only the kindest of feelings toward them.

I wish to thank the Boston AMERICAN for its splendid work in my behalf. I do not believe that I underestimate it when I say that the work of this paper was perhaps the largest contributing factor in the election.

—JOHN J. MITCHELL.

Thoroughly alarmed for the future of the Republican party in Massachusetts, and angered over what he termed the "unmanagement" of the election in the Thirteenth Congressional District, which resulted in the victory of John J. Mitchell, the Democratic candidate, by an overwhelming majority, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge is planning to overturn, gather together, and reconstruct the remnants of the now demoralized Republican State machine.

Washington dispatches say Senator Lodge directly attributed the poor showing made by his party to the incapability of the campaign leaders. He will at once make a final attempt to whip the machine into shape, and short work will be made of the present leaders, in whom "a change is imperative," according to the Senator.

The vote was:

Mitchell, Marlboro, D.	13,134
Cutting, Weston, R.	8,742
White, Brookline, P.	5,503
Mitchell's plurality	4,392

The election of Mitchell had been covered by the Republican leaders, but the hope that the Progressive cause had lost the first burst of popularity received a severe setback on the face of the returns.

The first returns from the polling had scarcely come to Senator Lodge in Washington before he declared it was evident the Republican vote had not come out, disgusted with too much voting."

He later declared that the new men now in control of the party in Massachusetts were eminently incapable of getting their supporters to go to the polls.

"A change is imperative," he declared.

Norman H. White, the Progressive candidate, said:

Surely the Republican machine has much cause for reflection, and those citizens who have blindly followed a party label and accepted in effect a candidate standing on a platform against human progress have again been shown the light.

I wish to express my thanks for the gallant fight put up by my friends throughout the district for good government and clean politics.

Both Alfred L. Cutting, the Republican candidate, and Matthew Hale, leader of the Progressive party in the State, see in the election a general trend against the Republican party. Cutting would not admit that the Republican party showed any serious falling off since last November, but Hale declared that the vote showed a distinct loss of support.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

That several foreign manufacturers will figure in the third annual 500-mile international sweepstakes race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on May 30 is the belief of experts who follow the world's automobile events closely. This belief is based on a study of the French Grand Prix race which will take place in July. This is the greatest automobile event which will be held in Europe this year, and the entry list already published reveals the rumor startling information that forty-one prominent cars which were entered last year will not be represented in the 1913 event.

Such well-known drivers as Louis Wagner, Victor Hemeny, Percy Lambert, Rene Harriot, Fauget, Barriaux Page and De Vere are without mounts. It is a generally recognized fact that the 500-mile race at Indianapolis will be the biggest racing event in the world this year, and since the Sunbeam and Peugeot people have turned their favorable attention upon America it is thought that other European manufacturers may follow suit.

Irving Gaitz, formerly manager of the Cox Brass Works of this city, has been appointed New England manager for Smalley Daniels, No. 22 Motor Mart, which company handles a full line of motor supplies.

William Blanchard, sales manager of the Lenox, has just returned from New York, where he closed a big agency deal with an automobile dealer in Brazil. Half a dozen of the Boston made Lenox cars have been started for Brazil.

The Sunday fire at the building of the Peerless Motor Car Company of New England was confined entirely to the paint department, and will not in any way impair the prompt and efficient service which this company provides for its customers. The Peerless building, at No. 500 Beacon street, is one of the largest and most completely equipped automobile sales and service stations in New England, and the fact that it is of the most up-to-date type of fireproof construction, prevented the fire from spreading beyond the room in which it started.

DR. FRIEDRICH FRIEDMANN, from a new photograph taken during his visit to Washington.

75, UNABLE TO PAY, WAIT IN RAIN FOR CURE

PROVIDENCE, April 16.—Seventy-five tuberculosis victims, unable to raise the $25 fee now set by Dr. Friedrich F. Friedmann as his minimum charge in private cases, stood huddled in the rain at the entrance to Dr. Dudley G. Dwinell's office at No. 55 Jackson street at 7:30 today, waiting for the free treatment they hoped to get from the German expert at 10 o'clock.

That was the hour they were told yesterday, by Dr. Maurice Sturm, Dr. Friedmann's associate, to return to Dr. Dwinell's office, if they did not have $25 to pay for private treatment.

It is estimated that Dr. Sturm passed on at least seventy-five patients who had $25 to Dr. Friedmann for treatment yesterday. There were 300 crowded into Dr. Dwinell's reception room and overflowing to the veranda and around into the back yard throughout the day. Dr. Sturm would not say at night just how many paying patients were accepted, but one-fourth of the entire number was an estimate made by a reporter who was there five hours.

So far Dr. Friedmann has taken in $1,200 by private cases in Rhode Island. Yesterday was the first time he set a minimum scale for paying patients.

The throng that came to Dr. Dwinell's place was due, according to several physicians and patients, to an understanding that Dr. Friedmann would administer free treatment yesterday to patients sent by physicians. The result was almost a stampede, if such word could be applied to the patient throng which came, some on crutches, to Dr. Dwinell's.

TELEPHONE GIRLS BALLOT FRIDAY ON WEEKLY INCREASE

The more than 2,500 girls of the Boston Telephone Operators' Union will hold meetings Friday to take action on the proposition of the New England Telephone Company on weekly wage increases to its Boston operators in effect June 1. The company has posted bulletins in the various exchanges announcing the new wage schedule to replace the proposed "anniversary payments," rejected by the union.

International Vice-President G. M. Bugniazet of the Electrical Workers' Union, who directed the movements of the operators in initiating and conferences, said he considered the increase granted by the company a victory for the girls' union.

Roxbury Piano Storage Salesrooms Co.

J.P.Collins

Founder of the Roxbury Piano Storage Salesrooms. The man who has done more to keep down piano prices than any other dealer in Boston. The Largest Distributor of Pianos in America.

His Great Piano Sales

A Piano Sale here is always a sacrifice, always a bargain sale, always a mark-down sale. The very nature of business, as the public knows, is one of sacrifice. The business here, is not conducted like the business of a regular Piano store down town, where they are expected to make a profit on each piano—where they get their profit DIRECTLY out of the sale of pianos. We don't let any piano loaf around on the floor of the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms—it comes in, in DUE TIME a Sacrifice tag is clapped on to it, be it high grade, low grade or middle grade, and it is sold to the first man or woman who wants it for the price marked on the tag—not a cent more or less. The selling price is made on the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms "Expense" percentage" basis, and is figured to let the accounts out clean and clear without regard to profit—so you can see easily by this statement how these sales must necessarily be sacrifices. Someone's loss is your gain.

The gilded piano stores, with their costly appointments, their high-salaried sales agents, their sellers' commissions, etc., are no place for the economical piano buyer to go. Take the trouble to look around a little, go up where the rents are not so high and buy your piano right.

More Splendid Piano Bargains This Week April Sale Now On

The prices on the well known standard high-class makes quoted below will not be changed for at least 6 days. Many fine new and second-hand uprights of other equally first grade makers will go for so little that you would hardly believe the price if we quoted them.

The House on the Marsh

A Celebrated Mystery Story by Florence Warden

PART II.

THIS was a yearly distribution of clothing and money among the very poor people of the parish, which took place in November. It was rather strange that Mrs. Manners should want to speak to me about it, I thought at first, as I was not a district visitor. However, of course I must go. So I went back to the dining room and told Mrs. Rayner about it.

"Don't go, Miss Christie," she said at once. "It is some trap, some trick Mrs. Manners never sends messages except by her own boys. Don't go."

"I don't like not to go," said I hesitatingly. "It may be something of importance, and Mrs. Manners has been so kind to me. Please let me go, Mrs. Rayner."

She shrank into herself and leaned back again as the cook reappeared at the door, saying the boy said that Mrs. Manners's message was—would I make haste?

"Of course you can go, Miss Christie," said Mrs. Rayner, listlessly.

I was upstairs and was down again ready for my walk in a few minutes. The boy was evidently ready to accompany me, and the fog was so thick that I was glad of it, for he was more used to the turns of the road than I, and never he had to go very slowly and keep close to the hedge. He kept urging me to make haste, however, and I followed plo as fast as I could, while he turned every other minute to see that I was still behind plio.

The school was about a half mile from the Aiders, among the first houses of the village. When I stumbled against a milestone which was, I knew, not far from our destination, the boy said:

"Here, miss, take care! This way."

And, taking a corner of my cloak, led me round into a path which branched off to the left.

"But you are going wrong," I said. It is straight on, I know—but up here. This is the way to Dunning's farm, half a mile off."

"It's alright, miss," said he. "I'm afraid of our being run over along the high road, now we're so near the village. Come on, miss, it's alright."

He was very impatient, and I followed him, not without some misgivings. We had groped our way up this lane for the first moment felt to exhausted by the excitement of those awful minutes to struggle much. I could only feebly try to push him off, crying brokenly:

"Don't—don't hurt me!"

"Hurt you, my darling? Look up at me! I have nearly frightened you to death."

I looked up with a cry and flung my arms around his neck. It was Laurence, his face so haggard and so dirty as to be scarcely recognizable; but he told me, as he kissed me again and again, that I must not mind that, for he had traveled night and day, without a moment's rest, since he got my letter on the morning of the previous day.

"And, thank heaven, I am in time—in time," he cried, as he pressed me again in his arms.

"In time for what, Laurence? I should have been near you in two days," said I, wonderingly. "We were to start tomorrow morning."

"Tomorrow morning? Just a few hours more, and I should have lost you!" cried the poor fellow in such agony of horror and relief as the same time that only to see him in that state brought the tears to my eyes.

"Lost me, Laurence? Oh, do tell me what you mean!" I cried piteously.

"Oh, Violet, are you so innocent as to think that that man would have brought you to me?"

"Why not?" asked I, in a whisper.

"Because he loves you himself," said he between his teeth, "if the feeling even you inspire in such a man can be called love. Your innocence would not have protected you much longer. Oh, I was a fool, a blind fool, ever to leave you for father, mother or anybody in the world. But I did not know quite all until your own sweet, naive letter opened my stupid eyes!"

"Oh, Laurence, Laurence, what dreadful things you are saying!" I cried, shaking with fear even in his arms.

"Never mind, my own darling, you are safe now," said he very gently. "I didn't mean to frighten you. I ought to have warned you long ago, but I could not bear to"—

"But, Laurence, my mother is going with us. Didn't I tell you that? I had a letter from her"—

"Which she never wrote. On my way back to London I telegraphed to your mother to meet me at Charing Cross station, and there she told me she had never seen Mr. Rayner and never heard a word of a journey to Monaco."

This blow was too much for me and I fainted in his arms. When I recovered I found that he had carried me some distance, and, as soon as I began to sigh, he put me down and gave me some brandy and water out of his flask.

"I'm always wanting that now, I think," said I, trying weakly to smile as I remembered that two or three times lately, Mr. Rayner had given it to me when I seemed to be on the point of fainting. "You are the first person who has made me go off quite, though," I said.

And poor Laurence took it as a reproach and insisted upon our stopping again in the fog, for me to forgive him. We were making our way slowly, in the increasing darkness, down the lane to the highroad.

"But what am I to do, Laurence?" I asked trembling. "Shall I tell Mr. Rayner—oh, I can't think he is so wicked—shall I tell him you have come back, and don't want me to leave England?"

"Not for the world, my darling," said he quickly. Nobody in Geldham, not even at the hall, knows I have come back. That is why I had to send for you on a pretext, and frightened you out of your life. The boy I sent for you did not know me. I got there in a fly from the station. Only a few minutes before I met him, and sent him off with the promise of a shilling if he brought you back with him."

Boy Whistles Signal

But the boy, who, by making but a few steps forward, was lost to my sight in the fog, whistled again. I stood for for a moment trembling with terror. Then the boy exclaimed angrily:

"Why, he ain't here!"

"He! Who?" I cried in alarm, and at that moment I heard a crackling of the branches, and saw dimly through the fog, a few yards in front of me, the figure of a man crashing through the hedge, and leaping down from the field into the road.

Smothering a cry, I turned and ran I knew not whither. It was Tom Parkes, or Gordon who had decoyed me out here to punish me for my discoveries, which Sarah must have told them about. I heard the boy say "Thank ye," and

Boy's Anxiety Explained

"Ah, that is why he was so anxious not to lose sight of me for a moment. But what is all this mystery about, Laurence? Why don't you go to the hall and see your father?"

"Ah, that is a secret. You won't mind waiting till tomorrow to know that, will you, darling?"

"Oh, yes, I shall. I want to know now," said I coaxingly. "Won't you trust me with your secret?"

He did not want to do so, but I was curious, and hurt at his refusal, and so you know everything, and must keep my secrets, every one, like grim death. As for your journey, don't be alarmed. I shall be in the same train as you, and your mother will really meet you, for I have told her to do so."

THAT evening Mr. Rayner asked me if I should go into the drawing room and hunt out "La Traviata" and Moore's "Irish Melodies." I went obediently and was on my knees turning over the great files of music that stood there when he came in and softly shut the door. Before I knew he was near I felt something passing around my neck and heard the snap of a clasp behind me. I put up my hand and sprang to my feet, startled. Mr. Rayner, bright and smiling, drew my hand through his arm and led me to a looking glass. Flashing and sparkling around my throat was a necklace of red jewels that dazzled me by their beauty.

"Don't I keep my promises? I said I would bring you some garnets, Do they please you?"

But they did not please me at all after what Laurence had said. The magnificent necklace filled me with terror. I put up both hands, tore them off and flung them down with trembling hands to the floor and then stood panting with fright at my own daring, wondering what he would do to me.

"That is a very pretty spirit, but it is rather ungrateful, isn't it? Never mind, you shall make amends for it presently. Now, will you go and help Mrs. Rayner entertain our lynx-eyed friends? You shall come back and fetch me at 9 o'clock. Run along now, my dear."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

TARIFF PROTEST IS PUT ON TABLE BY DRY GOODS MEN

A proposition that the New England Dry Goods Association meeting at Young's Hotel should adopt a resolution against "radical tariff reduction" was laid on the table.

Several speakers said such a resolution could not be acceptable to all the members of the association and that the preparation of the new tariff bill has gone so far already that such a resolution would be likely to have no effect whatever, or as one member expressed it, "the resolution would not be worth the paper it was written on."

Simple Way To Darken Gray Hair

You Can Prepare a Mixture at Home That Does It Nicely.

If every person knew what a simple matter it is to darken their gray hair, this sign of advancing years would be a rarity. The ordinary dye or stain is not at all satisfactory and is easily detected, leaving the hair sticky, rubs off or colors the scalp, but this simple recipe, which you can make up at home at little cost, overcomes all these objections and is certain to give splendid satisfaction. To 7 oz. of water add one small box of Barbo Compound, 1 oz. of bay rum and ¼ oz. of glycerine. This makes a mixture that gradually darkens the hair or beard to a rich, glossy brown, removes dandruff and other ills of the scalp and promotes the growth of the hair. Apply once a week and when it is sufficiently darkened use once every two weeks. You will find if you try this excellent formula that there is nothing that can take its place.—Advertisement.

MARTIN DEAL OF $6,000,000 NEW MYSTERY

NEW YORK, April 16.—A $6,000,000 transaction, the details of which remain unexplained, is at the bottom of the mysterious disappearance of Joseph Wilberforce Martin, the Memphis cotton broker, who has been sought by friends in London since April.

This, at least, is the partial explanation given by his brother, N. Hill Martin, who was looked to sail on the Campania to aid in the search.

He said:

April 3 my brother sent word he had just closed a deal involving the sale of 60,000 acres of cotton land in Arkansas and Tennessee at more than $100 an acre to an English syndicate.

The deal was made through his agents, Bousted and Anderson, a London broking and banking firm.

That night Joe disappeared.

J. Lockhart Anderson, a member of the banking firm, has been the family's only source of information since my brother's disappearance. Anderson has sent us absolutely no word concerning the several millions which I believe must have changed hands to close the land sale.

Joe was no "rube." This puts some one in an awful hole. When I get to London they will have to do business with me in a hurry.

Hill Martin said in conclusion that his mother had a presentiment that something would happen to her son when he went abroad.

St. Paul's Parish of Dorchester Has Reunion Tomorrow

St. Paul's parish, Dorchester, of which the Rt. Rev. Bishop Anderson is rector, will hold its fifth annual reunion tomorrow evening in Intercolonial Hall, Dorchester. The object of the reunion is to provide funds for the renovation of St. Paul's Church, which work is already under way.

There will be whist, then dancing and vocal and instrumental music. A great crowd is expected by the executive committee, whose members, aided by the women and girls of the parish, have made plans for a delightful entertainment.

Frank S. Lane will be floor director. He will have Arthur D. Tighe as assistant director, and seventeen aids.

Heads of the other committees are as follows:

Refreshment, Mrs. M. Connery; executive, Garrett W. Scollard; reception, Dr. Francis N. Corr. The chief guests will be the Rt. Rev. Bishop Anderson and his assistants, the Rev. Frederic J. Ailchin and the Rev. William A. Connor.

BRYCE REPORTS WILSON GIVES IN ON CANAL

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—James Bryce, discreet and prudent diplomat, familiar with our country and fresh from the breakfast table of the White House, assured his British public that a decided favorable to England is forthcoming in the issue of the Panama Canal tolls.

Secretary of State Bryan went out of his way at the Navy League dinner last week to sing in the face the "ample navy" spirit of the country, opposing even his fellow cabinet officer, Secretary Daniels, to say that he would never be in favor of a large navy unless the country was invaded, as if in elemental common sense there would be time then to build a navy for defence.

Now the President himself has chosen as counsel for the State Department, John Bassett Moore, whose hobby is arbitration as the solution of international differences. The Associated Press, which leans invariably to the administration in power, sent out from Washington today the statement that President Wilson has informally indicated to his friends that he believes in an interpretation of the treaty which would make it improper for the United States to exempt its vessels in the coastwise trade from paying tolls.

SEIZE PASSOVER WINE AS IMITATION

Inspector Bancroft, under the direction of Dr. G. H. Adams and Dr. C. E. Holton of the federal pure food department, seized in the warerooom to which they had been shipped from New York, twenty barrels of wine, each containing fifty gallons, intended for the use of the Jewish people in this city on the feast of the Passover next Monday.

BULGARS RENEW ATTACK, TURKEY DROPS PEACE PLAN

PARIS, April 16.—A telegram from Constantinople states that there is little hope now of the war with the Balkan States being terminated by Turkey on her own volition. This is due to the Bulgarians renewing their attack on Chatalja. When the news of the attack reached Constantinople, there was a meeting of the Cabinet. It was then urged that the war be continued.

A significant movement, the telegram continues, is that of stopping the disbanding of the volunteer regiments.

MASCOT

CRUSHED CUT TOBACCO

The Brand New Idea in Smoking Tobacco

Costs only 5 cents—but it is as good tobacco as ever came out of Kentucky. The reason I can sell you ten cent quality and quantity for a nickel is—I pack MASCOT in an inexpensive moisture-proof cloth pouch.

Tin boxes cost money. The manufacturer passes that cost on to you. You pay for tin. You can't smoke tin; but you buy tin in order to get GOOD tobacco.

With MASCOT in the field, that tin-box, goat-fodder money-waste is no longer necessary on your part. Quit it.

MASCOT isn't an ordinary 5 cent tobacco. In quality it stands shoulder-to-shoulder with the ten-centers. It is the very cleanest, carefully-cured mild old Burley leaf, the best Kentucky grows, aged until it is mellow and sweet and fragrant; then sliced, resliced, rolled and crushed until all the tobacco runs uniformly through and none of it "smokes in streaks."

Men, you can't buy better tobacco. You take my word and just try it.

Buy it today.

PILGRIMS AND PHILLIES AGAIN BALKED BY RAIN

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—The Boston Pilgrims and the Phillies were again forced to lost today on account of the continued rain.

Stallings' men were scheduled to open their series with the local club on Monday, but rain made baseball out of the question. Rain also "held up" yesterday's contest.

It is now almost a week since either team has taken part in a game of baseball, and to say that the players are tired of passing their time in hotel corridors and at the theatres would be putting it mildly.

The rival managers also realize that the long layoff is doing their men no good. Just now the members of the Pilgrims and Phillies need plenty of work in order to put them in condition for a hard pennant race.

Manager Stallings has already started to cut down his squad. Metz has been sent to Indianapolis, Schultz to Toronto and McKechnie to the New York Americans.

Wilson Collins, a pitcher who had done some great work for the Vanderbilt College team, has signed with the Pilgrims.

COOMBS ILL AFTER BOSTON EXPOSURE

Jack Coombs, who pitched in the first two games played by Philadelphia here, is home, for that city threatened with pneumonia, as the result of last week's exposure. It is believed that his illness may have cost his world pitching at that time. He has a temperature of 101, and is being attended by Dr. McFarlan, the club physician.

Red Sox-Yanks Final Battle Off

Chance Is Real P. L. of Old

By L. R. MURDOCH

After resting his eye to windward this morning Manager Frazee of the New York Americans saw no chance of playing the final game of the series with the Red Sox this afternoon so he told Business Manager Ivan Howley to make preparations for the entire team to board the 3 o'clock train for New York.

President McAleer of the Red Sox, who stopped at the same hotel in New York players, appeared in the offing about this time.

Manager Frazee, not a game today, Mac?" inquired Chance.

"Looks mighty dubious, but we won't call it off until we have to," replied McAleer.

Well, I'll bet you a good cigar there isn't a chance in the world to play this afternoon," observed the Peerless Leader.

"You're on," replied the Red Sox boss, thereby violating the American League rule against betting. Within an hour the game was officially called off and McAleer had lost his bet.

Chance learned for the first time through the newspapers that his club had secured the services of Jack McKechnie, who has been playing centrefield for the Boston Nationals. He was pleased.

"McKechnie is a good ball player and I'm glad to get him," said the manager. "I remember him well when he was with Pittsburgh."

Chance's good judgment on the Yankees—besides its effect on their team fielding, their steadiness, their well directed activity on the base lines, their batting and their improved organization, all of which has been demonstrated clearly in the three games they have played already—is shown very effectively in still another important direction, where it might not be expected to count so much. We refer to the pitching.

Few managers know enough of the practical work of every department of the game to show such versatility as Chance has displayed. Those who are most adept in directing all the details usually slip up on the pitching. They usually have to depend upon their catchers to direct that, or engage veterans who have made a success in that particular department. Chance has apparently succeeded in developing some good pitching from what looked last year like a very mediocre corps.

McConnell was good at times last year, but he never pitched a more carefully balanced and directed game than he retired against Walter Johnson at Washington. Ray Caldwell is in the same boat. He seems not to have much besides an excellent and sometimes baffling change of pace. Yet he put all he had into Monday's game and almost won it, against the rare flinging of Joe Wood.

Ray Keating, who starred in the New England League at Lawrence last season, did not seem like a sibling light when he was bought for the Yankees and appeared in big league company. But under Chance's skilful heading he seems to have become a remarkably well balanced young hurler. Yesterday he pitched an admirable game against the champions after the first inning and beat them, 2 to 2. Keating's performance was impressive. He has a deceptive spitball, which he controls very well, and a perplexing slant which had the Sox pulling away and reaching most of the afternoon. He always seemed to have something up his sleeve. The hard hitting Sox were absolutely unable to get the ball squarely and they never had a chance to win the ball game.

All three of these men had good support, to be sure, but besides that they pitched their own games with more uniform skill than Yankee pitchers have displayed in a long time.

While the Yanks only topped us by one run, we had the "breaks" of the game in our favor for a change. None of our hits in the first inning—which scored our only two runs—were clean drives. Certainly none of them was placed. Every one of them was directed at an infielder, and we only "got by" because it was a raw, cold day and the three slams delivered by Hooper, Speaker and Gardner were too vicious for Chase, Keating and Sterrett, respectively, to handle.

After the first inning, the five hits we collected were scattered and were dangerous but once. That was in the second inning. Two were out at the time, Hall doubled and Hooper singled to right. Hall started for home, but was cut in like heavy machinery and there was no chance for him to score. The play, however, threw a throw to the plate and Hooper reached second. Then Keating got on a little more moisture and struck out Steve Yerkes.

On the other hand, Charley Hall and the Sox would doubtless have been beaten farther off, but for the fact that Hall's curves seemed to break sharp and widest for him when he was in a hole. He had three bad innings—the second, third and fourth. The second in the eight clean hits made by the Yankees were five doubles and a triple. These long drives, together with a pair of bases on balls, would seem to call for more than three runs—particularly when all but two of them were clustered in three consecutive innings.

But an example of how Hall was able to do business with his curve ball when disaster seemed imminent, was shown in the second, when six men went to bat, three hit safely and the other three struck out—all for a total of but one run. It was Hall's fast straight ball, which, by the way, was full of "smoke," that was belted. Even his slow ball worked well. The first inning Walter Chase led off with a triple in the fourth and scored on Sterrett's sacrifice to Speaker.

Red Sox—In the first, Hooper beat out a single past pitcher and Chase's glove near second base. Yerkes sacrificed him to second and he advanced to third on Speaker's smash that was too fast for Keating to handle and scooted out of reach in the infield. Hooper and Speaker worked a double steal, aided by a low throw from Sweeney into centrefield, on which Speaker kept going, and reached third in safety. Sneaker scored on Gardener's drive, which was too furious for Sterrett to hold cleanly.

M'CARTY MEETS FLYNN TONIGHT IN 6-ROUND GO

By JACK CONWAY.

PHILADELPHIA boxing "fans" will have a chance to witness the greatest series of heavyweight bouts staged in an Eastern ring during the past decade this evening. Five six-round battles between some of the leading big boxers in the game are down on the schedule.

The feature contest will be between Luther McCarty, the stalwart young Westerner who has proved that he is the king of the white heavyweights, and Jim Flynn. McCarty rules a big favorite as he has already scored a knockout victory over the stout-hearted Pueblo fireman.

JOE JEANETTE, the powerful Hoboken black, who is feared by every heavyweight in the ring, meets George Cotton, Jack Johnson's former sparring partner, in the semi-final contest of the evening. The rest of the card is as follows: Jim Savage vs. Tom Logan; Frank Moran vs. Sailor Walter; George Rodel vs. Young Al Kaufman.

THE announcement that the heads of the old Armory A. A. are going to open a new boxing club at the Boston Arena within a short time, which was made exclusively in this column last week, has stirred up a great deal of interest in fistic circles. There has not been a "big" bout in Boston since last Fall, and the "fans" are eager to see the "headliners" in action.

I am now in a position to state that the first show of the new club will probably be staged in a month or six weeks at the latest. The boxing promoters and the Arena management have held several meetings and the deal appears to be all but consummated. It is expected to be drawn up within a few days.

JOE EAGAN, the South Boston lightweight, will leave for Lawrence this afternoon in order to complete training for his twelve-round bout with "Young" McDonough of Manchester, N. H., which is billed to take place at the Unity Cycle Club tomorrow night. Eagan has been in New York where he assisted Matty Baldwin to get into condition for his "go" with Jack Britton last night.

Right Off the Bat

By RILEY.

THE baseball season ends its first week tonight, and the Boston Nationals are still in first place. If rain follows them all the rest of the year, they will finish in that position. You can't beat 1,000 per cent.

* * *

NOT a nickel has dropped into the Boston Nationals' treasury since the opening day, when Jim Gaffney cleared some $6,000 in New York. His men have been idle since last Thursday afternoon, while hotel bills and railroad fares to Philadelphia have accumulated as persistently as the snow goes 'round. Boston weather has been bad enough, but we have managed to squeeze out four ball games in five baseball days, and the Sox magnates are farther ahead, financially, than any of the others. They have accommodated nearly 30,000 spectators since the season opened.

* * *

THE Red Sox have made exactly eight hits in each of their four games. Nine of these have been doubles. "Duffy" Lewis holds the long-distance record. He has made three of the two-baggers. But Lewis has made nothing else but doubles.

* * *

EIGHT hits ought to win almost any ball game. Yet the champions have dropped three out of four. Every game of the quartet has been won and lost by one run. The Athletics beat us 10-9 and 3-4. The Yankees beat us 3-2 and we beat them 2-1.

* * *

DETROIT lost again, 9 to 0, to Cleveland yesterday. Ty Cobb might have wiped out the goose egg had he been among those present, but the "Georgia Peach" certainly would not have won that game.

* * *

OF the eight hits the Yankees made off Charley Hall, but two were singles. Five counted for two bases each and one for three sacks. Of the eight safe ones but one—Chase's in the second inning—was at all "scratchy." But those eight perfectly good hits and two bases on balls netted only three runs. Hall was like the little girl, with the curl, in the poem: "When she was good, she was very good, but when she was bad she was horrid."

* * *

OF the eight safe ones the Sox belted four were distinctly "scratchy." Stahl's crew were lucky to get the two runs they did get.

* * *

SPEAKER took a desperate, though foolhardy, chance in an effort to tie the score in the fifth. With two down, he hit to Keating and the pitcher's throw went through Sterrett at first. "Spoke" kept on to second, which was all that he was entitled to under the circumstances. But, in order to draw a throw from Sterrett, who had meanwhile recovered the ball, he dipped away off second and was caught, Sterrett, to Chase, to Hartzell to Chase. Two men were down at the time, the Sox were flying distress signals, and, of course, Speaker worked the play with the solitary hope of getting the Yankees mixed up in a wild throwing match, during which he thought there might be a possibility of squeezing over a run. Maybe it was good judgment, in the circumstances, but was a long, long chance and did not work out.

* * *

YERKES has mastered the one-hand-quick-swing play of high wide throws to catch base stealers. He worked it successfully on Walter in the first. Steve took Nunamaker's high heave perfectly in his gloved hand, without looking, and slapped it around with one motion just as Walter passed him, swatting the runner on the back with the ball the instant he scuttled it. This is the only way such throws can be handled successfully at second base, but few second-jackers can handle them with such precision and dispatch as Yerkes.

* * *

NUNAMAKER nailed the only other attempt to steal by a beautiful low throw, heading off Sweeney in the fourth.

* * *

HOOPER and Speaker worked the first double steal of the season in the first inning. They were helped by Sweeney, who threw low to Young at second base and the ball bounced into centrefield. Speaker kept on to third on the play. This error gave the Sox their opportunity to score their second run, for it put Speaker in a position to score on Gardner's infield hit with two out.

RUMOR COBB TO BE TRADED TO THE YANKEES

By DAMON RUNYON.

NEW YORK, April 16.—As a pleasing subject for a rainy day reflection—a sort of Tommy Rattlecination, as you might say, in view of the fact that Mr. T. Ratty, the famous fan, brought the matter to mind—there is Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the man who held so far out that Frank Navin of Detroit, Mich., is now utterly unable to see him at all, despite the fact that the Jewel of Georgia has commenced to wave his arms and give vent to sound in an effort to attract attention.

Consider the case of Cobb.

There was a rumor reeming about this island of ninth inning incidents last night to the effect that the great hold-up—10,000 pardons, Ty!—hold-out—might come to New York as a member of the Yanks, which is, in fact, the only way he can come here and find the welcome mat waiting.

In his public statement, issued yesterday from Augusta, Georgia, where he is hived up waiting until Navin recovers from his attack of myopia, Tyrus suggested that he be traded by Detroit. Naturally, this sowed the seed of the rumor that he might be traded to New York, and as it was properly irrigated by rain throughout the day, a full flowered story was blooming in the Bog Belt by nightfall.

It is said that the hermit of Augusta greatly wishes for $15,000 each and every year for playing with Detroit, and after contemplating the shoveling made to date by said city, some are inkind enough to suggest that it's worth it. A Coloboma crew of Tigers is like jam without the eggs. Nevertheless, Frank Navin simply cannot induce his checkbook to emit 15,000 milled-edged men as salary for the Georgia Gem, so Tyrus Raymond Cobb moves and seconds that he be traded.

Luscious Grapes are more Tasty than Dry Raisins

Dried-out raisins cannot be compared to Nature's luscious Grapes. Tobacco when pressed in Plug form has more flavor, fragrance and smoking quality than when sliced or granulated for convenience sake.

Chopping or granulating ruins the natural tobacco flavor, as it cannot retain its natural moisture, and every bit of evaporated moisture takes with it some of Nature's good tobacco flavor.

The only way to retain all the flavor is to put the whole leaves under pressure, into Plug form, and covering it with a natural leaf wrapper, thereby retaining all of its natural flavor and moisture.

Prove this today by buying a plug of Master Workman tobacco. Whittle off a fresh pipe load, and enjoy a slow burning cool smoke of delicious flavor.

"GUNBOAT" SMITH NEW TERROR OF BOXERS IN "HOPE" DIVISION

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

YANKEES' SUCCESS IN FLAG RACE DUE TO CHANCE

"GUNBOAT" SMITH TERROR OF RING

"HOPE" SEEKS BOUT WITH JOHNSON

By A. D. OPESTER.

Right off the mitt, let it be said that these statements are mathematically and pugilistically accurate:

Edward Ireaeens equals Gunboat Smyth equals Smith.

These things being admitted, the way is open to saying that Edward Ireaeens Smythe-applied S for k, remember, is in town as Gunboat Smith. But he doesn't belong to the Smiths—called S-mi-t-h. Folk of that ilk can't claim him for their own.

As a matter of family tree correctness, this latest of the "hopes" who are yelling for a chance at that "black despair" Johnson is Gunboat Smith.

Edward Ireaeens or Gunboat, whichever name you light first prefer, had some interesting things to put across in an interview I had with him. He says there is a dearth of pace makers and truck drivers in the land, as all the huskies are quitting their jobs to join the "white hope" brigade.

Then for a knockout to the hopes of the "hopes," Edward Ireaeens shoved this one over:

Smith Gives Real Dope on what a Haymaker Is.

I am the man who can tick Johnson. I put the big black brute through the ropes—yes, sir, clean through the ropes—with a haymaker (see note below) when I was his sparring partner several years ago.

You betcher life I did, and I can do it again. And having done it once, is any man better qualified to win back the heavyweight championship to the white race than yours truly?

(This is the note Edward Ireaeens says a "haymaker" is a wide swing of his trusty husky strong right arm. Mr. Smith says farmers make hay with similar slashing swings.)

But this isn't all that Edward Ireaeens said.

He says he is a woman's suffragist—in this he defies Luther McCarty, who ISN'T a suffragist he says he is looking for a wife who is a suffragette but who won't be able to cook, he says he can cook himself new wash dishes scrub floors number the collars and fill the housekeeping bill generally.

What he says he can do is enough to make the public wonder why he didn't come into the spot out before he whaled Rosebud or Wells but leaving low while the referee counted ten over the Britisher's prostrate form.

That was hardly a month ago, and with that Wells wallop Edward Ireaeens arrived into boxing fame and a theatrical contract.

I did'nt intend to be knocked out till I get in the matrimonial ring. I'm hoping to meet the right girl. When she comes in sight I'm going to buy her a real ring.

You see the navy gave me a great education. On the cruiser Pennsylvania I learned to cook—ham and eggs, coffee I got scrub a lot, but learn them other work—stores serve the crew and also the officers' messes. But I'm getting it well enough to tell those birds when the right girl comes along. Need have to do it all the time.

Say, got to be a suffragette too. Since I got a start there. Haven't you got any fun? Is your mother? Her brother too—not me. I wouldn't dare. I even have trained my wife our spare—ahem, if one hasn't worked me out. I've got her where I want her, I reckon.

Love—now that's the one thing I've learned that I'm not good at. Would you believe it? Not the better I've it. Hasn't it me? Ever been engaged? Whoever did.

Bride? Try em now? So said.

Edward Ireaeens is a good big chap with an honest frame—a chilly appearance handsome when smoothed with the proper finish and shave.

Those gigantic hands are explain why Bombardier Wells won. I'm a boxer. From up to the Edward Ireaeens means now six feet one and one-half inches. He never the great American cruiser he's been in since 1909. Some reach for as the navy has let free—the last ship I'm in has sent the coop inland.

The boxer said that the deciding blow is far straight out right hander with a touch to spot. Wells was going back on the next step to Portland.

I am not such a bad fighter. I don't do things by rules or tricks. I hit anyway. Just let out at the fighting instinct guides me. Real fighters you know are born not made. You've got to have the instinct to fight in order to come on on top.

I want to get at Jack Johnson when the proper occasion it. He ought to be licked. It would be a shame to let him back run off with the champion title.

I think the wind out of Johnson's sails. That was when he was training for the bout with Stanley Ketchel. I was in the navy then I sparred with Johnson in his camp and with my haymaker caught him back of his ear and sent him out of the ring between the ropes. And I can do it again, believe me. Only give me the chance and I'll do it.

I want to meet McCarty and Willard most of all. McCarty is dodging me. He's taking on the small fry there he's fighting Jimmy Ryan in Philadelphia, whom he knocked out once.

I never fight the same man twice. After him and Willard I want to take on Jeannette. The first white man who fights Johnson and who can give real race, will, least the big black despair.

Edward Ireaeens was born in Philadelphia twenty-four years ago, he told me. His father is Samuel Smith, a machinist on the battleship Virginia. The final took part in the navy.

Once he won the army and navy championship a year and when he tried to climb the rope later, he said he couldn't get a picket for it. His first "knockout" bout was fought March 17, 1910.

In the navy they nicknamed him "big feet."

"Are your feet as big as your hands?" I asked him.

"Dunno" he replied. "My feet looked big to my eyes. But then dressed me 'Gunboat' and the name stuck."

Edward Ireaeens says he's way training behind—develops him physically.

"What do you eat?" I asked him.

"Say, just set me warp myself around a dg porterhouse steak and I'm happy," he said. "I always eat all on about two or three pounds of porterhouse. I eat that many every night for my supper."

I finished a week his hobby.

"Eats and shows," he said. "And I'm a no end rough. But I love baseball and musical comedy."

"GUNBOAT" SMITH, the powerful "white hope," who is anxious to battle either Jack Johnson or Luther McCarty.

VERMONT NINE IS OFF FOR GOTHAM

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 16. — The Vermont University nine left for New York today, and after playing St. John's at Brooklyn on Thursday must face two of the hardest teams on its schedule, Fordham on Friday and Yale on Saturday. The first home game on the regular schedule is with Middlebury, April 29.

Hal Chase to Shine at Second New York Star in Real Try

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

HAL CHASE, a left handed base ball player, had his first real chance to demonstrate his ability to play second base in a game between the Red Sox and the New Yorks at Fenway Park yesterday. Base ball fans all over the country are interested in the question whether he can make good in that position or not. The professional element of baseball is particularly interested in the question.

When it was first announced that Chase would have a try at the base ball wise men of baseball owas generally shook their heads and predicted dire failure. As a first baseman Chase has demonstrated his worth. He has been pronounced the best in the business. Being left handed he is rather than handed a first baseman. He is possible to make more baseball plays than a right handed man. I find a most [illegible] spell. But a left handed second baseman, that is something else again.

CHASE played second base for his team in the opening game at Washington last Tuesday, but it was a good ball game to him and the critics had no opportunity of pronouncing a verdict. His only chance in the field was a pop fly that he took care of in easy fashion. A pop fly is easier for either a right hander or a left hander.

He was to have played second base in Monday's game at Fenway Park, and he did play two or three innings, but had no fielding chances. He retired early in the game as he had been hit on the right arm with a pitched ball in practice before the battle.

It was thought at first that he would be out of it for some time, but by the morning, beyond a soreness where the ball had hit him, his arm felt in good condition and he decided to get busy again. This is a brief story of what he did in the field yesterday.

THE first grounder that went in his direction was in the very first inning. He was fairly set in his position when Hooper, the first man up for the Red Sox drove a hard grass cutter, which if it had gone through the diamond would be a game for Boston about five feet to the right of second base. Chase came running in and got his hands down on the ball but it glanced from his fingers and before it could be recovered Hooper was safe on first. The ball was hit with such force and Chase had come from such a distance to take it that the scorers gave Hooper credit for a safe hit which, of course, saved Chase an error.

Pitcher Hall had nothing more to do in the first event to look pretty and he is a pretty good looking fellow. I left the rest of the visitor. Then off Lewis the first man up, he tried out into right field and took a fierce liner that looked safe from the stand. Hard he was to get off. Larry never a screeching grounder that was headed for center field. He was to get it [illegible] Lewis' grounder at full speed toward second and, scooping the ball on the run, he [illegible] right hand pocket for it. He pulled it out, whirled around on his right and whipped the ball to first base. It was a pretty play.

He threw was straight [illegible] of the ball and was [illegible] Lewis was a step out of base when [illegible] a hard peg to say that made it look easy.

OUT that pay alone the question as to whether Chase can make good as second baseman is not decided. He has shown that he can get to the ball and [illegible] and that he is a good fielder. He has also shown that he can throw [illegible] to first base. He has also shown that he can throw [illegible] to first base. He has also shown that he can throw [illegible] to first base.

If Chase can keep up the pace he did yesterday Manager Lake need have no worry about the bag.

As to the batting ability of Chase he threw [illegible] on the field. He ought to be a much better than for a right hander to [illegible] making the return throw to the pitcher in record time. Chase [illegible] a couple of attempts to score, that might be [illegible] many more offers. Perhaps we will have a chance to see [illegible] afternoon when the New Yorks and Red Sox wind up their series.

PHOTOGRAPHY REVOLUTIONIZED BY NEW INVENTION

Films, Plates and Dark Room Made Unnecessary

New Camera Takes Finished Pictures in Two Minutes

Mr. Edmond F. Stratton of New York city, has invented a camera that takes and completes pictures ready to pass to friends. It does away with the expense of buying films or plates and the trouble, expense and delay of having them developed and pictures printed by a photographer. The camera has a fixed focus lens and there is no delicate focusing mechanism to get out of order or for you to learn to operate.

This camera, which is called the Gordon Camera, is being manufactured by the Gordon Camera Company, 1609 Stuyvesant building, New York, N. Y. As they are desirous of making it known in every locality, they are making a special offer to our readers. For a limited time they will sell models A, B and C as [illegible] The regular price of Model A, which takes pictures 2¼x3¼ inches, will cost only $5; Model B (regular price $10), which takes pictures 3¼x5½ inches, will cost only $7.50, while Model C (regular price $15), which takes both sizes, will cost only $7.50. Whichever one you order, enclose 90 cents additional to cover parcels post, extra sensitized cards and extra developing powders

The sensitized cards are wrapped for daylight loading, and the powders make the developing solution to be put into the developing tank, which is inside the camera. Model A is 5x8½x9 inches [illegible] and weighs 2 lbs. 4 ozs. Model B 6x8x10 inches—weight 2 lbs. 11 ozs. Model C, 9x9x10 inches—weight, 4 lbs. 7 ozs.

The cost of taking pictures with the Gordon camera is almost nothing in comparison to all other cameras. Extra sensitized cards (2½x3¼) can be bought for 1½ cents each (3¼x5½ for 3 cents), and 10 cents worth of developer will develop over 40 pictures. The Gordon Company sells flash light lamps for 80 cents, which will enable you to take pictures at night in your own parlor.

The operation of this new camera is so simple that any little boy or girl can easily take pictures with it after reading the directions sent with each one. When ordering a camera under this special offer be sure to mention that you are a reader of the Boston American.

INADEQUATE AUTHORITY

SENATOR JAMES P. CLARK of Arkansas is not one of the [illegible] of the Senate but he told the following recently with great relish

"One of the best known Judges in my State was hearing a case the last time I went back there, and the lawyer for the defendant, to illustrate a point, declared

"'Your honor, me the Bible tells us, "every tub must stand on its own bottom."'

"The learned Judge promptly interrupted, informing him that he was no mean Bible scholar and that he was positive the quotation was not to be found in holy writ.

"The lawyer heard him in respectful silence, scratched his head thoughtfully and said:

"'Your honor, you are doubtless right, but I maintain that it's durned good doctrine and if it isn't in the Bible it ought to be.'"

FROM A NEW ANGLE

WHEN Solicitor-General Lehmann left Washington to pick up the threads of his St. Louis practice he left a gap in the ranks of Washington's raconteurs that will not be easily filled, in spite of the volume of his work—which is great part of the government's most important trust litigation was handled by him before the Supreme Court. Lehmann never lacked time to swap stories.

One of his favorites concerns the visit of a New Yorker to St. Louis. Judge Lehmann pointed out to him one day the [illegible] house in which Sherman had [illegible] headquarters at the start of the Civil War. Just across the street [illegible] residence built by a man who [illegible] his millions in the meat export business.

"That's a curious contrast," said Lehmann, "the old home of a great soldier and the magnificent palace of a man who made his money in pork."

"The pen," replied the New Yorker, "was always mightier than the sword."

STRONG BACKING

REPRESENTATIVE HENRY C. FLOOD has a constituent down in Spottsylvania County, Virginia, who has long aspired to the position of postmaster of the neighboring crossroads store. His name is Stephen Nash, and when at last his application was presented to Mr. Flood for approval he indorsed it as follows:

"I take pleasure in recommending Nash. We Floods supported him several thousand years ago.

"(Signed) H. C. FLOOD."

Hunting a Husband

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

In Which Paul Maynard Disturbs Beatrice Minor's Reverie Concerning Her Possible Marriage With Keith Lacy.

BEATRICE MINOR'S sudden impulse, leading her to purchase five dollars' worth of flowers to be sent to Paul Maynard in the hospital, was followed by a shaking of heart. She felt that Paul would never know that the beautiful blossoms had come from her. So what good could they do her in his eyes? Yet, when she remembered his suffering, and that to his heroism was due the lives of her children, she was glad she had been extravagant if her gift might bring him the least bit of happiness. But how could she be sure that it had?

This thought was uppermost as she lunched with her children, and seemed to listen to their talk. When they went out into the park with Mary she changed her dress and put on a pretty afternoon gown. She wondered dully why she went to this trouble.

The only person who might call today was Dr. Haynes, and she did not expect him. But it gave her a comfortable sensation to know that she looked attractive, even if nobody saw her.

All alone in her living room she began to think of Keith Lacy. If she married him would she succeed in forgetting Paul? And would she be happy out on the ranch? She looked around upon her small, well-appointed apartment and sighed as she thought of leaving all these luxuries. Well, she must, at all events, answer Keith's note, so, seating herself at her desk, she began a letter to her absent lover.

A Marvel of Diplomacy.

This letter was a marvel of diplomacy, for in it the writer committed herself to nothing. She told Keith of her loneliness, of how uneventful her life was, now that most of her shopping was completed; she asked him to describe to her his ranch and the people who were with him.

"You have spoken to me of your partner as a nice chap," she wrote. "If I am—possibly—to become acquainted with him some time, I would like to know something definite about him." Then she paused. Of what matter, would Keith's friend be to her when she was a staid married woman?

She appreciated, as she had not done in months, what marriage must mean to her after these years of freedom. She had played so long with the thought of marrying this or that man that until now she had not faced clearly the fact that when she was Keith Lacy's wife, flirting and half accepting or almost refusing any man, would be a little game which she could no longer play. Could she be satisfied with Lacy, and Lacy only—and live with him out on a ranch away from all her associates, and friends, and pretty new fashions in clothes and in entertaining? And the children—was it fair to them to take them away from the educational advantages that were to be had right here in Boston? She laid down her pen and wrung her hands.

"Was any woman ever so harassed?" she moaned. "Oh, I wish I knew what to do! I am tired of supporting myself and the children on my small income; I am tired of having nobody to look out for me and love me. And yet can I love Keith enough to marry him? Can I love anybody?"

She leaned back in her chair and closed her eyes, and, as in a dream, she had a swift mental vision of one man, the thought of whom thrilled her. She saw again his erect figure, she saw his deep eyes, the tender and yet humorous gleam in them that she had once been able to call forth. And this was the man whom she had refused—whom she had repulsed and to whom she had been unkind! Now she might never see him again!

The telephone bell rang sharply and she answered it mechanically, her mind still on the one insistent subject. The boy at the switchboard downstairs was speaking.

Robert Maynard Calls

"There's a gentleman calling," he said. "Shall I send him up?"

"Who is he?" asked Beatrice.

She waited while there was a short parley between the clerk and the caller. Then came the startling announcement:

"It's Mr. Robert Maynard that's calling, ma'am."

The woman stifled a gasp of astonishment and steadied her voice to say: "He may come up."

While the elevator was bringing up her guest, the widow ran into her room to give a finishing touch to her hair and to exchange the plain handkerchief she carried for a dainty embroidered one.

"Mr. Maynard!" she said politely, but with little warmth in her voice. "Good afternoon! I was surprised when your name was announced just now."

She stood aside to let him enter, but did not offer to shake hands with him. Robert Maynard, however, no wise abashed by this omission on the part of his hostess, turned to her as she, side by side, they entered the living-room.

A Treaty of Peace

"We have not met in some weeks, Mrs. Minor," he said, "and you have been through a great deal since then. For the sake of the friendship that once existed between us, will you not shake hands with me now?"

His tone was so frank and cordial that, before it and his kindly gaze, Beatrice felt her chill manner thawing.

"Certainly," she said, with a smile, and laid her hand in his. In his handclasp there was no sentimental pressure, and yet, as the widow looked into his face, she felt her pulse quicken for an instant. It was not because of the pain that stood before her that she felt this sudden change come over her, but because there was in his face a passing likeness to his brother. A casual observer might not have noticed it, but this woman did, and, seeing it, turned away with a sigh that she changed into a poor imitation of a laugh.

DIFFERENT ALTOGETHER

HAPPY lovers were they, both devoted to dancing, both partakes of the joys of the annual village Cinderella. She was a beautiful, graceful, skilful dancer; he far less adept, with no control of his tootsies, and little idea of rhythm. In point of fact, he was not so good at dancing as he had let the lady to believe, by his fervent descriptions of his prowess. Half way through the Cinderella the lady's beautiful gown was sadly torn, her dainty slippers bore marks of heavier tred, her toes ached from stampings likenito those of a Nasmyth hammer. Eventually she decided to give up in despair.

"I am so tired," she whimpered. "Do let's sit out the rest of the dances."

But the swain was relentant.

"I thought," he remarked, "you said you could die dancing."

"So I can," came the reply. "But I didn't say I wanted to be trampled to death, did I?"

TWO OF THE FINEST GOWNS OF THE SEASON

AN EFFECTIVE COMBINATION OF SILK AND VELVET.

These photographic reproductions represent, as the caption indicates, two of the finest gowns created this season. The one on the right, a white evening gown, is made of heavy charmeuse, with a short train; over this, beaded white tulle is draped diagonally. The tulle is gracefully arranged over the satin bodice; and bands of the beaded trimming finish the sleeves.

The picture on the left shows an effective combination of silk and velvet. The upper portion is composed of pink silk, which hangs quite simply over the shoulders; the lower portion is of rich brocaded violet velvet.

A WHITE DRESS FOR EVENING WEAR.

Are You Happy? If Not, Why Not?

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyrighted 1913, by Star Publishing Company.

YOU men and women who read these lines, what are you doing to get the best out of the short life you are living?

I know what you are striving for, most of you men (American men), it is wealth and power.

And you do not want these things so much for yourselves as for the wives and children who bear your names.

But, good sir, are you not making a mistake to so utterly absorb yourself in business?

If you really live to make your dear ones happy, would you not attain the result sooner by giving them a little more of your time and attention as you go along?

I have talked with hundreds—yes, thousands—of wives of ambitious men, and the universal complaint is: "Oh, if my husband was not so tied down to his business—if he could only give a little more time to his family—take a few weeks now and then for recreation with us, or even a day's outing now and then, how happy we would be. But he is so busy all the time and so tired and nervous."

Does it pay?

And you, madam, are you making your husband realize that you would rather have more of his leisure than more of his riches? or are you complaining that you do not live as well as your neighbors, and urging him on to renewed efforts by your petty nagging and restless discontent?

Many a woman, instead of being the helpmate and comfort to her husband God intended her to be, is the whip that drives him like a tired horse to overrun his strength.

Ask yourself if you are one of these! There have been hard times for men in the last two years.

Have you made your husband feel that you sympathized with him in the difficulties that he has encountered in these days of trusts and monopolies?

Have you been ready to take a philosophical and cheerful view of the economies and deprivations forced upon you or have you been despondent, complaining or rebellious, or by a martyr-like air added to the mortification of your troubled husband?

Have you tried to brace up his discouraged moods by your optimism, and to turn the temporary tragedy into a laughing jest? or have you driven him to the verge of despair and suicide by your half concealed contempt at his failures?

And you, sir, have you made your wife realize during these years of hard struggle that she is the dearest thing in the world to you, and that her sympathy and companionship are more to you than all the honors the world could offer you would be without them?

Or have you left her to guess this to be the fact that while you plunged deeper and deeper into business and rarely spoke to her unless it was to find fault and complain of small delinquencies, with no word of praise for great virtues?

Answer these questions silently to yourself and then ask yourself what makes life worth living.

Is it not, first of all, a peaceful, love-warmed home companionship with dear ones, and the giving and receiving of simple pleasures and of sympathy and affection?

What use will a fortune be if you lose those joys out of life?

Would it not be wise to obtain and retain the best things as you go along? The end of the journey is not far—and the only thing you can take across is Love.

SHE MIGHT HAVE BEEN

Little Visitor (pointing to a large oil picture)—Whose picture is that?

Little Hostess—She was my mamma's great aunt. I never heard much about her, but guess she was a school teacher.

Little Visitor—Why?

Little Hostess—See how her eyes follow us about!

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as the new prescription, othine—double strength—has been discovered that is guaranteed to remove those homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any of the Rike-Kumler drug stores and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful, clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Some Modern Aphorisms

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

IT is sometimes very difficult to do the right thing, but it is even more difficult to do the other thing—discreetly.

* * *

To have a talent for marrying and to have a talent for marriages are two totally different things.

* * *

Diamonds are the accentuation marks in the social score; they emphasize the distinction of the distinguished, the insignificance of the insignificant, and the vulgarity of the vulgar.

* * *

Most truisms are epigrams, but few epigrams are true.

* * *

Many men owe their success to their wives, but many more owe their wives to their success.

* * *

Some men marry treasures and others treasuries.

* * *

A fool can shatter a wise man's argument with an idiotic laugh.

* * *

Toying with a girl's affections is not playing with fire, but dabbling in tears.

* * *

The ideal man is just the man you choose to idealize.

* * *

Marriage will sometimes work strange changes; it has changed a kiss from a pleasure into a duty, and a life from a luxury into a necessity.

* * *

To divert a man, flirt with him; to infatuate him, flirt with somebody else.

* * *

A woman will love because she pities, a man will only pity because he loves.

* * *

It is sometimes difficult to tell why the average woman marries the man she does, but it's usually because he was the one that happened to ask her.

* * *

One may know a lot about a woman without knowing the woman herself.

* * *

Love, like any other stimulant, ceases to have that exhilarating effect after it has become a steady diet.

* * *

A kiss deferred maketh the sweetheart sick.

* * *

Nowadays every woman has a mission, and one is content with submission.

* * *

The moment you cease to be in love you cease to live, and the worst of it is that you have to go on living just the same.

* * *

Women with nerves are trying, but women with nerve are fried—for breaking windows or something.

* * *

A clever woman may try to deceive other women, but she will leave men to deceive themselves about her.

* * *

Many a girl marries for love simply because she can't find a man with anything more substantial to offer her.

* * *

Platonic affection is the beautiful blue a woman puts up as the easiest way into a love affair and a man falls back on as the easiest way out of one.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

"Why, the size of your bill," cried the angry patient to the doctor, "makes me boil all over!"

"Ah! said the eminent practitioner, calmly, "that will be ten dollars more for sterilizing your system."

* * *

A Sunday-school teacher had just told the story of Dives and Lazarus to his class, and at the close of the lesson he asked:

"Now, boys, which would you prefer to be?"

One smart lad replied quickly:

"I'd like to be the rich man while I live and Lazarus when I'm dead."

STOCK MARKET AND LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

Trading in stocks was dull locally during the first hour and copper issues got little attention. There was more interest in industrials and railroads. New Haven opened fractionally lower, but soon recovered. General Electric was down a full point at the start. Boston Elevated opened half a point higher and doubled the gain within a few minutes.

A little later it increased the rise by a quarter-point. United Fruit receded a point within a few minutes after the opening. Boston & Maine sustained a half a point decline, many coppers which sold lower were North Butte, Butte & Superior and Mayflower.

At the end of the first hour in New York, Reading and Steel were a little higher and American Smelting, Amalgamated, Union Pacific and Lehigh Valley were lower.

The London market grew stronger near the end of the session.

"Taken all in all, the New England commercial situation is less favorable than a month ago. Collections are slow and in more unsatisfactory shape. Banks have been and are closely scrutinizing credits. In most lines of activity, especially those likely to be directly affected by the tariff, business men generally are restricting their commitments. In certain industries, construction already noticeable have not been voluntary, but forced by lack of business offered.

"There is genuine alarm throughout New England over the provisions of the tariff bill now before Congress. While it is true that there has been great liquidation in stocks of merchandise in anticipation of the passage of a tariff bill, New England was not and could not be prepared for so drastic a bill as that now under consideration. The disastrous effects to this section of earlier bills, involving a less drastic adjustment than the proposed Wilson-Underwood bill, are remembered all too vividly. To a large number of New England industries, the new tariff bill, if passed in its present shape, will mean a shock and period of adjustment to new conditions and a final serious loss."

New York Opened Heavy.

There was a heavy tone to the New York market at the opening and almost all active issues declined. The margin of loss was too small to be important, however. It represented the genesis' feeling of depression. The most disheartening feature was the absence of demand for stocks. Public interest seemed entirely lacking. Cable advices from London reported a fairly steady market, but that market lacked animation. Dealings in American stocks were of a professional nature, but prices were maintained above parity. Covering was evident in Canadian Pacific.

In New York in early trading Amalgamated declined ¾ to 75¾ and other recessions were: American Can ¼, Atchison ¼, Erie ¼, Reading ⅛, Steel common ⅛ and Union Pacific ⅛. Canadian Pacific was in good demand and advanced ½. Fractional advances were also made by Pennsylvania, Western Maryland, St. Paul, Great Northern preferred and a few others. Northern Pacific was unchanged on the first sale, but gained fractionally afterward.

The Curb was dull.

London Copper Quotations.

The London copper warrants market opened easy and with spot off 12s. 6d. and futures 7s. 6d. lower.

Fortnightly statistics show that European stocks of copper on April 15, including Hamburg and Rotterdam, had increased 860 tons since the month before, while copper afloat to Europe had decreased 150, making the net increase in visible supply 710 tons. Foreign stocks yesterday totalled 45,702 tons compared with 45,077 on March 31.

February copper shipments, according to the U. S. Geological report, totalled 77,380,071 pounds and the exports are valued at $10,644,250. For the eight months period ending with February 28 the total shipments were 317,993,137 pounds were exported, compared with 353,815,336 in the corresponding period of a year ago and 530,623,287 pounds two years ago. Imports in February amounted to 9,459,432 pounds in ore and matte and 21,372,292 pounds in pigs, ingots, etc. The eight months imports totaled 209,499,773, a record as compared with 182,353,176 pounds a year ago.

Sales of copper in Germany at 156 cents basis were reported yesterday.

A Globe, Arizona, dispatch says Southwestern Miami has encountered copper in hole No. 11 at a depth of 1,043 feet. Assays from 1,040 to 1,060 show commercial grade, it is reported.

New England's Trade Slows Down.

The First National Bank of Boston, one of the two largest in this section of the country, reports that within thirty days business activity has slowed down in New England. The bank says:

"Business which for months has been on a head-to-mouth, spot basis, because of shortages of supplies and high prices, is now to an extraordinary extent on a hand-to-mouth basis and quick-delivery basis. Conditions are such that men are more than ever disinclined to push business, even where raw materials are more available and price concessions on finished goods obtain. Conservatism, especially in matters beyond current transactions, is everywhere apparent.

"Special causes, such as strikes, tariff uncertainty, and shortage of raw materials, indicate a slowing-down weeks ago in special lines such as wool and hides. This fact has been freely chronicled. Moreover, certain lines were also manufacturing, it is normal at this time for factories to slow down materially between seasons. The new aspect of affairs lies in the fact that all New England now appears to be affected. Continued expectations of good conditions created an already tense credit situation, while the Middle West floods added still another factor to an already quite abnormal situation. For several days following the disaster, eastbound shipments of freight in New England diminished, while somewhat while salesmen operating in the afflicted area were unable to send home their usual volume of orders.

Financial News in Brief.

One rumor about the Rumely corporation is that it needs more working capital and that directors may suspend common dividends to build up a surplus.

It is believed in London that business with India is picking up. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific, is expected to visit the transatlantic shipping situation. It is called that although German lines have met his reduced rates, Canadian Pacific business is still possible.

The Shatuck, Pa., plant of the American Steel Foundries Company will resume operations on April 28 and give employment to between 500 and 600 men. The plant has been idle for two years.

It is reported that for the first quarter of this year the Pullman Company earned at the rate of 9 per cent. per annum on common stock and that Western Pacific earnings are running at the rate of 11 per cent.

The New York subway system lost $1,150,000 in the week ending yesterday, reducing the cash net gain since Friday to $712,000.

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, APRIL 16, 1913.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

The People's Fight for the Pure Butter Bill Has Been Won—That It Was Almost Lost Through Treachery Is Another Argument for the Initiative and the Referendum

The AMERICAN wishes the public to know of the EXCELLENT PUBLIC SERVICE rendered by Senators Ward of Buckland, Fisher of Westford, McCarthy of Marlboro, Clark of Brockton and Horgan and Fitzgerald of Boston, who led the fight to defeat the INDECENT attempt to assassinate the Pure Butter Bill by the Republican machine under the direction of President Greenwood of the Senate.

The foul blow which these machine men attempted to deal the Pure Butter Bill has already been exposed in the AMERICAN. But it will bear repeating because it illustrates the IRRESPONSIBILITY OF LEADERSHIP in our Legislature and the folly of reposing in the control of such a body the absolute and final powers of legislation which now rest with it.

This bill was introduced on the petition of Mayor Fitzgerald and the Massachusetts Milk Inspection Association. Its merits were so great that in open debate and in fair and decent parliamentary proceedings its enactment into law could not be stopped. It had passed through every parliamentary stage in which any real contest is ever made against a bill, and it was up for enactment in the Senate. This is almost always a merely formal stage.

Beaten in the open fight, the machine gentlemen hatched a PLOT to defeat it when it came up for enactment, while the Senators who had directed the contest in behalf of the Pure Butter Bill WERE ABSENT on other legislative duties.

The conspiracy succeeded perfectly on Friday. But on Monday, when Senator Fisher moved for a reconsideration, the absent Senators who wanted to give the consumers of Massachusetts honest butter were in their seats. Some of them, though Republicans themselves, DENOUNCED the Republican machine leaders who were in the conspiracy.

The CONSPIRACY itself was so flagrant and had been so thoroughly exposed by the AMERICAN that the Senate ordered the action of Friday to be reversed, and the bill was passed.

It is known that at least one of the Senators most active against the Pure Butter Bill has been attorney recently, and perhaps still is attorney, for one of the interests affected by the bill. But no sense of propriety restrained this Senator from participating vigorously in the contest against the bill.

If LITTLE special interests can do so much to thwart the passage of good legislation, what can the powerful special interests do? Is any one surprised that the demand for the initiative and referendum, by which the people themselves can correct the misconduct of their Legislature, is becoming LOUDER AND LOUDER in the country, and that State after State is adopting it, and that the Progressive party, now the second largest party in the country, has made it one of its FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES.

The AMERICAN Congratulates Both Congressman Mitchell and the Thirteenth District.

The AMERICAN offers its heartiest congratulations to Congressman Mitchell on his victory in the Thirteenth Congressional District.

From the beginning of Mr. Mitchell's political career the AMERICAN has recognized in him a man of signal probity in public life. As this newspaper pointed out to the voters during the campaign now so triumphantly concluded, he had an almost perfect record, both in the State Legislature and in his short term in Congress.

Viewed from the angle of the greatest good to the greatest number, we do not recall one instance in which Mr. Mitchell's vote was in error. Neither did he shirk nor dodge in Congress, as we showed during the campaign; he was recorded upon every roll call. He had his convictions and he had the courage of them. He knew that his duty was to be on the job, and he did his duty.

Those who consider that a dodge, a shift, an occasional sly apostasy to principle will not tarnish a good reputation, should consider Mr. Mitchell's success. He had little to help him except the fact that his reputation was WITHOUT ONE ACT of disloyalty or cowardice.

We congratulate Mr. Mitchell again.

The Telephone Company Has Done Well in Abandoning the "Bonus" Plan

The abandonment by the telephone company of the plan to increase the wages of its employes by the method of "bonuses" will be gratifying to thoughtful men.

The objection which the operators had to this form of payment is perfectly sound. The laborer is worthy of his hire. He wants justice, not charity; fairness, not generosity.

The almost universal objection which men make to the payment of gratuities instead of wages is evidence not only of self-respect among those who work for hire, but also is evidence of their keen foresight.

In practice the distinction between wages and bonuses may seem slight, but in principle it is great.

That the operators have been able to appreciate the important distinction shows that they can think straight.

That the telephone company is willing to abandon the bonus form of payment shows a good spirit.

Precaution Against Lightning

Indoor Safest Place—Shun Trees, Umbrellas and Wire Fences

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

A LADY writes me that she narrowly escaped being struck by lightning some years ago, and now she is in mortal terror every time the season for thunderstorms approaches and she wishes to know what precautions one ought to take in order to avoid danger from this source.

At the same time a man writes that he and his family like to spend the hot months in the country near a small body of water, but, having heard that water attracts lightning, they are nervous about it, and much of their Summer pleasure is destroyed by fear of thunderstorms.

Everybody knows people who are almost paralyzed by terror whenever a thunderstorm is raging about them, and since the season of such storms is not far off, and there is no way known to science of preventing their occurrence, it is worth while to recall some of the facts that have been learned about them.

Cloud Acts as Conductor in Drawing Lightning to Earth

A flash, a bolt, of lightning is simply a discharge of electricity, resembling that which may be produced, on a small scale, by accumulating a charge on the conductor of an electric machine, and then bringing some object near, to which the electricity will leap like a crackling thread of flame.

In the case of lightning the place of the charged conductor is taken by an electrified cloud, and the earth beneath serves as the object which "draws its fire."

But the strength of the discharge depends upon the density of the charge on the conductor. The charge resides upon the surface, and if more and more electrification is given to the same conductor the density increases until the strain upon the surrounding air becomes so great that it can no longer be borne, and then a discharge takes place through the air, which instantly relieves the strain by lowering the pressure.

Now, on a thunder cloud, which is composed of billions upon billions of minute particles of vapor, each of which has contributed its electrical charge to the common stock, the density, or potential, becomes enormous; and, when the discharge takes place, the flash may extend several miles through the air.

The small discharge from an electrical machine will burn particles of dust, or demolish minute objects. It will also produce a severe shock in the human body. But the gigantic discharge from a thunder cloud will instantly kill men and larger animals, tear off the branches, or rend the trunks of great trees, hurl down chimneys and towers, destroy roofs, melt iron rods and chains, and set fire to buildings and haystacks.

It was not until Franklin invented the lightning rod that men knew any way to ward off the strokes of lightning. The lightning rod does its work by providing an easy road for the electric discharge. When properly constructed it may even prevent too great an accumulation of potential in the clouds above by gradually drawing off their electric charge.

Coke Embedded Wires from House to Earth Best Conductor

According to Professor G. F. Barker, an effective way to protect an ordinary house from lightning is to run galvanized iron telegraph wire "up all the corners, along all the ridges and eaves, and over all the chimneys, taking these wires down to earth in several places, and at each place burying a load of coke around the wire in order to establish an efficient connection with the ground."

These wires should terminate above in sharp points, elevated several feet. The object of all this is to furnish ready ways for the electricity to travel between the clouds and the earth. Travel it will, somehow, if it takes a fancy to go in that direction, and if the way is not open it will open it by force. But it will usually follow an iron wire, if it has no sharp turns, as obediently as a led child.

There is danger, however, in being near a lightning rod when a discharge takes place through it, because the human body is a fairly good conductor, and an overflow current from the wire would be apt to leap to it.

As to personal protection, without regard to lightning rods, the safest place in a thunderstorm is in a house. Keep the doors and windows closed. Avoid the neighborhood of stoves, chimneys and fireplaces, especially if a fire is burning in them. Remain in the centre of the room. Do not carry large metallic objects in the hands, and keep away from such objects in a room.

Franklin, who knew as much about lightning as any man that ever lived, advised sitting in a chair, in the middle of the room, and putting the feet up in another chair. But the best protection of all, according to him, is to have "a hammock, or swinging bed, suspended by silk cords, equally distant from the walls on every side, and from the ceiling and floor."

Shun Umbrellas, Trees and Wire Fences in Storms

If you are caught in a thunderstorm in the open, do not carry an umbrella, and do not take shelter under a lonely tree, or a small group of trees. Keep away from wire fences. Many cattle have been killed by lightning striking, or following such fences.

There is more danger near a body of water than in the midst of dry land, but by keeping indoors one may feel secure even on the shore of a lake or river.

Statistics in all countries show that the number of men killed by lightning is far greater than the number of women, and the reason undoubtedly is that the latter are less apt to be caught out of doors by a storm.

Dr. Parkhurst's Article ON Concentrated Wealth—If World's Riches Were Divided Per Capita Progress Would Be Instantly Suspended

Written for the Boston American by

DR. C. H. PARKHURST

SHORTLY after the celebration of the late Cyrus Field's golden wedding I happened to meet him somewhere downtown and our conversation naturally turned upon the public event which had just transpired, and which had meant so much to him, especially because of the large number of cablegrams which he received from notable people in England congratulating him on his success in laying the first oceanic cable.

He went on to speak of the obstacles which he had encountered in the course of that achievement, the large amount of money which had been required in order to carry it through, and wound up with the emphatic declaration that it takes a great deal of money to accomplish large results and that even then the undertaking will be a failure unless the large money is at the disposal of a single mind and is principally the contents of one man's purse, and not an accumulation of pennies collected by passing around the hat among the crowd of the impecunious.

There is among us a rather widely prevailing feeling of antagonism toward those who are immensely rich, and that feeling is very often thoroughly justified.

It is justified when their wealth has been accumulated by dishonorable means and is the sum total of what has been overbearingly extracted from the pockets of those having small holdings.

It is justified also when the money which has been accumulated—whatever the process of accumulation, honest or dishonest—is employed and expended in accordance with the unchristian principle that a man may do what he will with his own.

But the feeling of antagonism is not justified on any such ground as that a man has wealth and a vast amount of it, for we never should have reached our present stage of civilization if we had not had such men and a great many of them.

Cyrus Field was right.

His doctrine is guaranteed by his own achievement.

He made it possible for people to talk to each other across the sea, without their communication being subject to the delay of going by sailing vessel or steamer. He was able to do it by means of the concentration of capital, subject to his own disposal and mode of expenditure.

If a man wants to go West he is no longer obliged to go on foot or to be transported in an emigrant caravan. The reason why such tedious method of travel has ceased to be necessary is that certain aggressive pioneers have had the control of enough money to track the continent with iron roadways and equip them with steam carriages.

We are all of us every day enjoying advantages that have been put within our reach by men that were immensely wealthy. If we are of a jealous disposition it may make us uncomfortable to realize how dependent we are upon what has been done for us by those who are infinitely more favorably circumstanced than we. If so, the best thing we can do is to get over our jealousy and not convert our blessings into curses by being soured by the way in which our blessings, many of them, have come to us.

We ought rather to be grateful that there are so many in the world who have honestly acquired large money and who are making so considerable a part of it accrue to public advantage.

Were we all of us to throw our entire property into one huge melting pot and then divide up per capita, everything in the shape of progress would be instantly suspended and the suspension would be continued till some progressive spirits were able to rise above the dead level of financial equality and set the wheels of progress to rolling again.

There is nothing in the foregoing that contradicts the fact that concentration of capital may work to public advantage; but that is only in keeping with the principle that whatever is good in the use may become bad in the abuse.

I HAD the oportunity last week to observe at close range how comfortably, and with what apparent satisfaction, ex-President Taft is adjusting himself to his new professional relations in New Haven.

The opening afforded him in the University furnishes an easy solution to a difficult problem. There will be, and there is, in some minds, a question as to whether such solution, however congenial to himself, is the one that is most to the advantage of the public or most creditable to the public.

Yale University regards him, of course, as a great acquisition, and is to be cordially congratulated; but is there not one point of view from which it would appear that a man who, for four years, has been gathering experience and political wisdom at a rate that a President of the United States is bound to have gathered it, practically buries himself alive by entombing himself in the class room of a college or university?

It would seem that the opportunity should be afforded to every ex-President whereby he might become, during the remainder of his life, a national rather than a local asset.

In addition to that, one requires to be of a very intensely democratic temper of mind not to feel that a degree of indignity is put upon the Presidential office by alowing an ex-President immediately on the expiration of his term to settle down, or rather to be dropped down, to a level of commonplace.

This is written without any feeling of disrespect for the University position which he now holds, but it is a long leap down from the Presidential chair to a professor's chair, and the dignity of the former is but imperfectly safeguarded by allowing its incumbent to be thrust down into the comparative obscurity of the latter.

The one fine and impressive feature of the transaction is the genial dignity with which Professor Taft has accommodated himself to the requirements of his compulsory eclipse.

THE GUSTOGRAPH

By JAMES W. M'GEE

(A Connecticut man claims to have invented a machine for producing on the palate the sensation of eating and drinking without the actual presence of food or drink.—NEWS ITEM.)

WHEN your stomach starts to grumble,
And your purse is rather light,
And a meal, however bumble,
Doesn't seem to be in sight,
Get a gustograph recorder
And the real sensation feel
Of a steaming, made-to-order,
But imaginary meal.

All the luxuries and pleasures
Of the rich and haughty swells,
All the gastronomic treasures
That are daily dished at "Del's,"
By this wonderful transmitter
Will be placed within your means
While you revel in the glitter
Of transfigured pork and beans.

Foreign wines that seemed expensive
Will be always at your hand,
Ancient Jazz howe'er extensive
Will react at your command.
Every cocktail you can mention
You may have within your house
Thro' the wonderful invention
Of the gustographic souse.

Soon the man who dares to risk it
Can have gustographic biscuit
With the wife who wants to bake,
"Just like mother used to make,"
While the suffering dyspeptic
At the banquet hall or club
Can sift in on antiseptic
And imaginary grub.
